DEMAND LAWS FOR PURE FOOD

Aroused by the campaign of the AMERICAN for a better food supply for the people of Massachusetts, crowds of interested citizens packed Room 426 at the State House today at the hearing by the Committee on Public Health of sixteen bills introduced through the influence of the AMERICAN'S recent articles.

The bills included a new one framed to meet the expose of Harry P. Cassidy on the rotten egg trust. This bill will prohibit throughout the State the sale of eggs unfit for food purposes. Other bills are framed to bring about a purer candy supply, purer ice cream, and purer dairy products.

The first bill taken up before the Public Health Committee was for a purer supply of ice cream. Representative Harry M. Eames of Andover advocated State regulation of the manufacture and sale of ice cream to conform with the United States laws.

These provide that there shall be 14 per cent. butter fat in all ice cream sold. Where syrup or nuts are used, however, the standard may be 12 per cent., and whenever lower it must be so labelled.

Thomas E. Rhoades of Andover, an ice cream manufacturer and caterer, urged that the committee report a bill making it compulsory for all ice cream to contain 16 per cent. of butter fat or 12 per cent. when syrup or nuts are used, all below this amount to be properly labelled.

He was asked by Senator Chase why it is necessary for a State law to be made when there is a national law in existence. Mr. Rhoades explained that the national law covered only commerce between the different States and that the government had no jurisdiction over foodstuffs manufactured and sold in only one State.

Cassidy's story of the rotten egg traffic in Boston and how his revelations have affected it, will be found on page 6.

JAILBIRDS THREE NOW SOUGHT BY KEENE, N. H., POLICE

KEENE, N. H., March 11.—Police and county officials are searching today for three prisoners who escaped from the county jail.

The men overpowered a turnkey, robbed him of his keys and locked him in the cell room. All were being held for the grand jury. They are: Harold F. Eastman, aged twenty-six, charged with the larceny of $1,150 from the Winchester, N. H., National Bank; Clesson Bragg, nineteen, charged with breaking and entering, and Edward Patenode, twenty-four, accused of highway robery.

PROPOSED FOSS MERGER PROTESTED

A protest against the proposed consolidation of the new Department of Labor with the Industrial Accident Board, as recommended by Governor Foss, was filed with the Judiciary Committee of the Legislature today by Jessie Donald Hallowell, president of the Consumers' League of Massachusetts; Richard K. Conant, secretary of the Massachusetts Child Labor Committee; Emily G. Balch, president of the Women's Trade Union League, and Mary Schenck Woolman, president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union.

FIREMEN PROTEST TERMINAL DELAY

NEW YORK, March 11.—James W. Lott of Elkhart, Ind., an engineer of the Lake Shore road, resumed the witness stand today at the hearings being conducted by the commission board acting under the Erdman law in the matter of the strike of firemen on fifty-four Eastern railways. W. S. Carter, examining the witness on behalf of the firemen, brought out the fact that the seniority cause for complaint in delay at terminals, for which the firemen receive no pay.

Young Man Smoking a Pipe Plunges to Death in Merrimac

LOWELL, March 11.—A well-dressed man, about twenty-five years old, smoking a calabash pipe, strolled out onto the Tyngsboro bridge near the Country Club. He stood there smoking for a time, and without any appearance of haste, vaulted over into the Merrimac River.

The water at this point was open, and to the amusement of several spectators the young man began to swim, while the current took him down toward the ice.

Enio Perham and Adolf Ekstron launched a boat and started after him. As they approached he dove under the ice and has not been seen since.

A large number of people have searched the banks of the river all day today. The man wore a heavy brown mixed overcoat.

Harvard Burglar Gets from Six to Eight-Year Term

Carlos Smith, alias Harry Daley, and John Smith, known as the "Harvard Burglar," pleaded guilty on three counts of larceny and was sentenced to from six to eight years in State prison by Judge Chase in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge today.

For months large sums of money, valuable jewelry and other personal property had been disappearing from the rooms of Harvard students. Then on January 28 Smith was captured by students in Apley Court and the thefts ceased.

An investigation disclosed the fact that Smith has served terms in the Pennsylvania Penitentiary and Sing Sing.

REFUSE TO ABOLISH PARTY ENROLMENTS

Governor Foss' inaugural recommendation for the abolition of party enrolments was voted down today by the legislative Committee on Election Laws. The same committee also reported against the bill of Thomas P. Riley, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, providing for popular preferential election of United States Senators.

HARVARD CERCLE HONORS AUBERT

The Harvard Cercle Francais honored Monsieur Aubert, composer of the new opera, "The Blue Forest," which has just been presented at the Boston Opera House, in the clubroom this afternoon. President Abrea of the Cercle Francais and Professor C. H. C. Wright, chairman of the French department, were in charge of the arrangements.

LAUGHS WITH BALL IN BREAST

Thomas A. Barnes, a Medford express man, is in the Massachusetts General Hospital with a bullet in his chest, while the Medford police are trying to clear up the mystery so far surrounding the case. Barnes refuses to tell how he was shot, even whether he shot himself, unless his condition becomes critical.

Barnes laughed when he gave the first announcement of being wounded. He staggered into James W. Roberton's bakery at Park and Salem streets, Medford, at 3:30 a. m. today. Joseph Roberton, brother of James, saw him and accused him of intoxication.

"With a laugh, Barnes said:

"I'm not drunk. I'm shot. Here's where it hit me."

He opened his coat and vest, then collapsed on the floor.

He was removed to the hospital. Sergeant Charles Elwell was sent with him, to get a statement if possible. But Barnes refused to explain anything.

Barnes, a divorced man, has been boarding with the family of Gaston Noterman, a contractor, at No. 245 Park street. The police say that Barnes has been drinking of late and that, when he came home to Noterman's last night he was refused admittance, and probably slept in the hay.

There are conflicting stories, however. One story is that Barnes told Noterman at 11 o'clock that he had been shot and that Noterman did not credit it.

But, at 5:30, Barnes did come into the bakery. After he was sent to the hospital the police, searching his room in the L of Noterman's house, found a revolver with one chamber empty.

From this the police constructed a theory that Barnes entered his room before dawn, removed his coat and vest and shot himself. He dropped the revolver near the bed, put his coat and vest on again and staggered out.

The Notermans say they heard no shot. The bullet went into the left breast and lodged in the flesh, without piercing the lung. It was located by an X-ray. While the wound is classed as serious, the hospital surgeons say Barnes' chances for surviving are good.

BUSINESS WAR BACK OF CHINESE SLAYING

After thirty-six hours' investigation the police have come to the conclusion that the shooting of George King, a Chinese merchant, on Beach street Sunday night, was due to business reasons. They scout at the idea of a Tong war, and declare that no gunmen have been imported from New York or San Francisco. The police are following several clews, and have a number of suspects under surveillance. There have been no new arrests, but interviews with the business associates of the murdered man resulted in the disclosure of valuable information.

FORMER WIFE SUES TO GET SUPPORT

Mrs. Addie N. Jewell of No. 217 Newbury street has filed a petition asking that Albert L. Jewell, a Boston real estate dealer, be compelled to support her and her child, Gladys C., who is twenty. She secured a divorce from Jewell in 1908, receiving $1,500 alimony at the time, and he married again. Mrs. Jewell claims that she has expended her last penny in educating the child and that she is now destitute.

JACK CUDAHY GETS MILLION AND HALF

CHICAGO, March 11.—Jack Cudahy, son of the late Michael Cudahy, who was disinherited by the packer, has won a settlement of his claims, by the terms of which $1,500,000 has been turned over to the Northern Trust Company to be held for "Jack," his wife and two children.

HEALY, NEWSBOYS' OFFICIAL, IS DEAD

William P. Healy, stateroom secretary of the newsboys' trial court of the Boston schools, is dead at No. 176 L street, South Boston.

Landlady Finds Painter Dead on Closet Trunk

George Meehan, fifty-three, unmarried, a painter, was found dead on a trunk in a closet of his room at No. 6 James street, South End, today, by his landlady, Mrs. Alice McInerney.

She opened a closet door and discovered Meehan's body on a trunk. She notified the police. The latter say that Meehan might have been stricken while hanging up clothes in the closet. They believe death was due to natural causes.

Pope's Continued High Temperature Worrying Vatican

ROME, March 11.—The high temperature of Pope Pius X., who has been suffering several days from influenza, remains insistent.

The hacking cough which has accompanied the illness of the Pontiff is also causing some anxiety to Dr. Amici, the papal physician in attendance, and to the officers of the church attached to the Vatican staff.

However, Dr. Amici has informed all the attaches of the Vatican that there is no cause for alarm.

In a bulletin issued today Dr. Amici said: "The condition of His Holiness is satisfactory. He seems stronger and his appetite has shown a healthy increase within the past twenty-four hours."

Winter's Farewell in Short Cold Snap, Says Weather Man

After just one more freezing spell of a few days duration cold weather will be a thing of the past until next Winter.

This was the official verdict of Weather Magistrate Smith today, presiding in the United States Weather Court on the top floor of the Federal Building. Weather Judge Smith stated that it will be "Fair and colder tonight." Asked for further information, he said that the mercury might go down to freezing for a couple of days. Freezing is 32 degrees above the zero line. After those two days of cold, Forecaster Smith said it will be warmer.

"Wednesday will be fair, with moderate northwesterly winds," Mr. Smith stated.

BRYAN MAY TEACH IN SUNDAY SCHOOL

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Secretary of State Bryan may be at the head of a Sunday school class before many weeks pass. Dr. Mc'ord, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who is intimately acquainted with Mr. Bryan, has requested him to take a hand in the Sunday school work and he will get an answer probably as soon as the State Department reorganization is completed.

MRS. BELMONT TO VISIT DUCHESS

NEWPORT, March 11.—With general regret in and out of the cottage settlement, the news became known today that Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has changed all her plans for the coming season. Instead of opening Marble House on Bellevue avenue, she will soon sail for Europe to visit her daughter, the Duchess of Marlborough, and will remain some time.

PATRICK, PARDONED SLAYER, IN WEST

CUSHING, Okla., March 11.—Albert T. Patrick, the pardoned slayer of William Marsh Rice, has been found. He has become a permanent resident of the town. Patrick is the representative here of his millionaire brother-in-law, John T. Milliken of St. Louis. Men associated with him say Patrick is a good business man. He has changed much in appearance in the last few weeks and has grown sturdier.

OGDEN MILLS BUYS MANSION IN PARIS

NEW YORK, March 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills have purchased a mansion in Paris, where hereafter they will spend two or three months each year.

TWICE WED, NOW SUES HER FIRST

Mrs. Elizabeth T. Beals of Moreland street, Roxbury, who married Milton A. Woodbury, one of the proprietors of Woodbury's Cafe in Newspaper row, supposing her first husband had been drowned, appeared before Judge King in the Suffolk Divorce Court today to get a divorce from her first husband, who hadn't died after all.

Mrs. Beals' testimony showed that she had been involved in unusual matrimonial complications within the past two years and had experienced the same thrill as the wife of Enoch Arden.

"I married Charles A. Beals, a drug clerk, in Pawtucket, May 25, 1894," testified Mrs. Beals. "A son, Charles W. Beals, was born a year later. Three weeks before my son's birth my husband deserted me.

"For six years I didn't see or hear from him. Then I passed him one day in Hanover street. That was in 1900. Again he dropped totally out of my life for years. In 1907, thirteen years after my marriage, I got a letter from a friend of mine in Providence that my husband had been drowned out West. I engaged a lawyer to verify this information, but was unable to do so.

First Husband Turns Up.

"In January, 1910, I met Mr. Woodbury and married him in 1912. After our marriage I was astonished to get a letter from my first husband. Then he returned as well as ever after I had thought him dead for years.

"Speaking of his existence Mr. Woodbury had our marriage annulled. I decided to take my first husband back upon his entreaties. He promised to stop drinking and to behave himself. Last month he began to drink again.

"He came home one night with friends. They drank and caroused. My son, who had been born three weeks after my husband deserted me, went into the room where Mr. Beals and his friends were making a noise and told his father if he didn't stop he would be forced to open a bar.

Boy Large for His Age.

"Your son told his father that?" said Judge King. "How old is the boy?"

"He's nineteen now and has grown so rapidly that he is bigger and stronger than his father," replied Mrs. Beals.

Mrs. Beals seeks her divorce on the grounds of desertion and intemperance. Judge King took the case under advisement.

N. Y. HOSPITALS OPEN ARMS TO DR. FRIEDMANN

NEW YORK, March 11.—Dr. John W. Brannan, president of the Medical Board of Bellevue Hospital, announced today that Dr. Freidmann, the German doctor, who claims to have discovered a vaccine which will cure tuberculosis, will probably be invited to give tests soon on all of 150 pulmonary consumption patients in the hospital after his return from Canada, where he is at present holding clinics.

Dr. Washburn, superintendent of the Montefiore Home, said that the Board of Trustees of that institution had decided to extend an invitation to Dr. Freidmann to treat tubercular patients confined there, if the treatment shows good effects. Patients in advanced stages of the disease now confined at Bedford Hills will be brought in for the remedy.

Dr. A. C. H. Freidmann, a brother of the discoverer of the anti-tubercular serum, is arranging the clinics. Dr. Frederick Freidmann will return here Friday night.

Jacob Heideker of Denver, a consumptive in the last stages of the disease, who came from Denver to take treatment from Dr. Friedmann, died today in a furnished room at 28 Garden street, Roxbury. Despairing of seeing Dr. Friedmann after several unsuccessful attempts, Heideker took passage for Europe to see his mother in Germany. He died on the Hamburg American line refused to carry him because of his condition.

Surgeon-General Rupert Blue, head of the public health service, today declared in Washington that Dr. Friedmann's tuberculosis cure is misnamed as "serum."

"The substance is nothing more than a vaccine," said Surgeon-General Blue. "The general use of the term serum in this connection is probably due to ignorance on the part of the exploiters of the story of the discovery."

MRS. ELIZABETH T. BEALS, woman who thinking husband dead, married Boston restauranter and now seeks divorce from husband No. 1.

DENOUNCE 'L' FOR 'PUBLIC BE D—' POLICY

W. A. Davison of Dorchester told the legislative Committee on Street Railways today that:

"The Arroya Indians in the Andes Mountains are treated with more respect and consideration than the people of Boston receive from the Boston Elevated."

The hearing was on the petition of Thomas A. Niland for an investigation of the Elevated by a special commission to be named by Governor Foss.

Mr. Niland said in part:

"The people of every district of the city are demanding better service. But there has not been the slightest semblance of an attempt on the part of the company to alter conditions. The company, with silent contempt, still maintains its public-be —— policy."

Mr. Niland also asked five questions: "Is the Elevated giving the people what they are paying for?

BLAME GAS FOR WRECK OF HOUSE

Two young men and two women were burned and injured and a new $9,000 two-apartment house on Carleton street, Revere, was destroyed today by an explosion of escaping illuminating gas.

The injured:

HARRY CONNORS, aged nineteen, burned about head and body and suffering from inhaled flame.

MRS. CHARLES CONNORS, his mother, aged fifty, burned on face and hands and suffering from shock.

MRS. ALICE LEARY, aged twenty-one, of No. 31 Ambrose street, Revere, who was visiting her mother, in precarious condition owing to burned face and upper part of body.

JAMES H. REAGAN, a neighbor, aged twenty-seven, of No. 7 Oxford Park, who came to rescue, slightly scorched and suffering from fall through collapsed floor.

The scene of the accident is close to the Lynn line. Negligence on the part of gas fitters who were installing a meter in the second floor apartment, which was not occupied, is said to have been the cause.

The family of Charles Connors moved in the new house yesterday. Connors has a provision store on the corner of Revere street and Broadway. His son, Harry, who works in the store, had gone home to dinner. The married daughter, Mrs. Alice Lary, was helping her mother prepare the noon meal.

The Connors family say that gas fitters were working most of the morning in the upper rooms. They had gone out to dinner when the Connors boy smelled gas. He went up stairs and found the room flooded with escaping gas. It was quite dark and he struck a match as he entered the bath room.

No sooner did the match sputter than there was a violent explosion that was heard for blocks. Windows in houses for some distance were shattered and chimneys nearby toppled.

It is said that the men had left a jet open or that a pipe burst in their absence.

The house was ruined. Mrs. Connors and her daughter, who rushed up stairs to the assistance of Harry, were met by a wall of flame. The boy was found lying on the floor in the burning room.

Reagan, who left his dinner to give assistance, had reached the second landing, when the floor gave way, precipitating him into the Connors' apartments.

Fire apparatus of Revere and Lynn was summoned.

The house is owned by R. H. Brooks of No. 117 Walnut street, Chelsea. It was numbered No. 37 Carleton street.

BUCKETSHOP MEN ARE FINED $20,000.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Six more bucketshop men today pleaded guilty in the District of Columbia Supreme Court and were fined a total of $20,000. They are: Joseph H. Gatins of New York and Virgil P. Randolph of Virginia, $9,000 each; William B. Price, Baltimore, $1,000; Edward E. Taylor, Washington, $500, and Edward Weldon and James A. Anderson, $250 each.

AGAINST WOMEN'S VOTE ON LIQUOR LICENSES.

The legislative committee on election laws today reported against the bill which would allow women to vote on the question of granting liquor licenses.

URGE TECK FOR CANADIAN POST

LONDON, March 11.—For successor to the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General of Canada, a small, but powerful group is urging the Duke of Teck, brother of Queen Mary, it was learned today. The Cabinet's choice is Earl Beauchamp, late Governor-General of Australia.

PRINCE OF WALES TO VISIT GERMANY

BERLIN, March 11.—The Prince of Wales, who is to visit Germany at the end of his present term at Oxford University, will go to Stuttgart, Wuerttemberg, to his mother's relatives. The Teck family, to which Queen Mary belongs, is a branch of the royal line of the Kingdom of Wuerttemberg.

PRICES UP AS 'FLURRY' HITS MEAT MARKET

A representative of one of the biggest Chicago meat packers said today that the wholesale price of meat, now on the increase, may go higher.

Increases in the wholesale prices are more than doubled in the retail, on account of the waste and the extra handling. The result, to the consumer, is quite a number of cents added to the family roast.

Wholesale agents were too late to talk for publication today, lest their principals in the West reprimand them. But one said:

"This present flurry, which is in lamb and pork, is not unusual. This sudden rise is due to shortage. It is purely a question of supply and demand. Pork is higher than it has been for some months, though not like the record price of three years ago. Nobody can tell what the future will bring. Prices may go up—or down."

Wholesale quotations today on pork products were: Ham 17 to 20 cents per pound, which is four cents over normal; dressed hogs, 11 to 11¼ cents per pound, two cents over normal.

Wholesale lamb was quoted Fancy, 14½ to 15½; Winters, 13 to 14; yearlings, 10 to 11½. These prices are a half-cent a pound over normal.

The increase to the consumer was found in these retail prices today: Forequarter lamb, 11 to 15; lamp, leg and loin, 18 to 25; hams (whole), 18 to 22; hams (slices), 28 to 31; fresh pork, 20 to 25; bacon, 25 to 30.

Men Who Shave Themselves

often find that the hair thinning at the temples—or find a spot on the crown of the head where the hair is thinning. Plainly speaking, the is the result of not shampooing properly often enough.

Dull, brittle, faded hair—falling hair, scanning baldness, dandruff, itching scalp, tender, parents, and the pimple thrown on unclean soap.

MISS TESLA SHELDON, English girl who rejects suitors, saying that dogs make better friends than men.

LONDON, March 11.—Several most eligible young men are plunged in despair because Miss Lesla Sheldon has rejected their proposals of marriage.

Miss Sheldon, a belle of South Kensington, residing in Playfair Mansions, Baron's court, is not hard-hearted nor is she insensible to the compliment a man pays her when he asks her to marry him.

But she believes firmly that human devotion can never equal that of the so-called lower animals. In a word, she refuses to rid herself of her beloved pets to make a pet of a husband.

Miss Sheldon possesses a horse, seven dogs, six cats, four canaries and a small alligator.

"I have been told often I am too devoted to my pets," said she. "But I know I would much rather look after them than take care of a husband. A good, well-bred dog is more appreciative than the average man; the dog understands much better and is a better companion; he is not so exacting as a man and has a better temper and a sweeter temperament."

SEEK TO END BOSTON STRIKE; 3,000 RETURN

Further conferences looking toward the complete settlement of the Ladies' Garment Workers' strike, were held today. With 3,000 cloak and skirt makers back at work under a peace protocol, there are still 7,000 workers on skirts and waists in the ranks of the strikers.

The manufacturers employing these declare that they will fight the strike to the end.

Unless 26, consisting of ladies' tailors and dressmakers, will hold a mass meeting tonight at the K. of H. Hall, No. 730 Washington street.

The protocol agreed upon by those who returned to work today gives the workers a fifty-hour week for nine months in the year, and a forty-nine-hour week during June, July and August; minimum wage standards; Saturday half holiday part of the year; elimination of the deposit system; the establishment of a board of grievances, and a court of arbitration.

MANUFACTURERS SAY NEW YORK ENGINEERED GARMENT STRIKE HERE

In a protest issued today by the Boston Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, members of that organization declare that the strike is engineered for the benefit of New York manufacturers, and that it is not a spontaneous outburst of injured employes, and that misrepresentation of facts and lack of knowledge of working conditions under them have led the public to take sides with the striking girls.

About 7,000 workers on waists and dresses are still out, although 3,000 cloak and skirt makers returned to work today under a peace protocol.

The manufacturers' statement says:

Public Misled, They Say.

We have been misrepresented in the press.

The interest of the public demands at this time a true statement of the facts underlying the present strike in the dress and waist industry of Boston, an industry representing the investment of at least five millions of dollars and covering over forty establishments.

The good public has been misled. The truth is that the dress and waist industry, as existing in Boston today and for several years past, can challenge wages, conditions and hours with any industry existing in New England. It is a settled fact to those of the public believe that girls are earning only two and three dollars per week.

Most of our operatives get no less than nine dollars per week, and the greater their skill and experience, the larger pay they get; and many young women in the industry get as much as $15 and $17 per week and a few get as much as $20 per week. Girls who live at Rosamund Wells has been sent home. Mrs. Wells is denied all callers except her counsel.

Events moved rapidly today toward getting the Wells cases before the Grand Jury. Testimony from all over Franklin County began to arrive in the town ready to go on grand jury duty if their names should be called at 2 o'clock.

Judge Willard E. White of the Franklin Superior Court arrived at the county courthouse. County Attorney Gaylord Ladd and Attorney General Hiram E. Brown, who arrived last night, both went to the jail today.

County Attorney Ladd saw Julius Wells in his cell for fifteen minutes. It is understood that the accused man was severely grilled.

Wells, who has stuck to the "Rough on Rats" explanation of the deaths of his children, has engaged Warren R. Ogden for counsel. Mr. Ogden was a recent but unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress.

S. S. Conking counsel for Mrs. Wells, went to the jail first thing today and conferred with her. Soon after Mr. Conking left Attorney-General Brown arrived at the jail. He talked with Mrs. Wells. No sooner had the Attorney-General left than Mrs. Wells' watchful counsel was back at the jail to see her and presumably to find out what the Attorney-General was doing.

The State has summoned twenty witnesses to appear before the Grand Jury. Some will be from the State laboratory, where the poison analysis of the contents of the Wells children's stomachs was made.

ACCUSE MAN AND WIFE OF POISON DEATHS

ST. ALBANS, Vt., March 11.—A package of arsenic, found on Mrs. Anna May Wells, accused of poisoning her two young children, was what led to the arrest, also on a child-poisoning charge, of her husband, Julius Wells of Swanton.

The exact cause of the husband's arrest has been carefully guarded by the authorities.

But it leaked out today that, when arsenic was found on Mrs. Wells, suspicion was immediately directed against Wells, who had been visiting his wife in her cell from time to time.

Julius Wells, who had been under suspicion in the child-poisoning case, was arrested.

The only motive that those who have followed the case can see in bringing arsenic to Mrs. Wells would be to enable her to take her own life if she became desperate.

These startling developments became whispered today, while preparations were space for convening the Franklin County Grand Jury and for presenting to it the charges against Mr. and Mrs. Wells.

Woman in Jail Two Months.

Mrs. Anna May Wells has been in jail nearly two months, charged with poisoning two of her children, Lewis, five years, and Mary, four.

Visitors have been allowed to see her quite freely by Sheriff George C. Holmes. Among her constant company has been her daughter, Rosamund.

Julius Wells, the husband and father, is a limekiln worker of Swanton, where the family lived. He came frequently to the jail.

There have been constant rumors of a second arrest to be made in the case.

On a recent day Sheriff Holmes found in Mrs. Wells' clothing a small box, like a druggist's powder box, containing a quantity of arsenic.

Casting back immediately in his mind the persons who had been to see Mrs. Wells recently, the sheriff fastened his suspicion on the husband.

The general suspicion against Wells in the original poisoning case crystallized at the sheriff's discovery. Wells, as is known, was arrested, charging with poisoning one of the Wells children, Lewis.

Callers Not Allowed Now.

Wells was put in a cell around the corner of a corridor from the big cell Mrs. Wells has long occupied. Though near, he can neither see nor speak to his wife.

Rosamund Wells has been sent home. Mrs. Wells is denied all callers except her counsel.

Events moved rapidly today toward getting the Wells cases before the Grand Jury. Testimony from all over Franklin County began to arrive in the town ready to go on grand jury duty if their names should be called at 2 o'clock.

Opera Directors Vote Confidence in Mr. Russell

The directors of the Boston Opera Company have entirely exonerated Managing Director Henry Russell of the charges made by Philip B. Kahn, publisher of Music, a magazine. Kahn is at present under indictment for criminal libel.

The statement follows:

Upon request of Mr. H. B. Russell, the board of directors of the Boston Opera Company has taken cognizance of various rumors and reports that have been circulated recently relating to the management of that company, and the executive committee, in pursuance of Mr. Russell's request, has made a careful investigation.

Each and every one of the rumors and reports brought to their attention has been found without foundation and appears to have arisen either from lack of familiarity with the circumstances of operatic management, or from malice, or simply from that irresponsible gossip which seems to surround almost every operatic institution.

The executive committee has also been enabled to make comparison of the expenditures of the Boston Opera Company with those of the other two companies in this country and has ascertained that the figures, both in the aggregate and in detail, afford convincing testimony of the economy, prudence and care with which the affairs of The Boston Opera Company are managed. They believe that the results accomplished and the high artistic standard attained in less than three years' time justify the claim of the Boston Opera Company to the support and approval of the opera-loving public, and they take pleasure in publicly expressing their unqualified confidence in Mr. Russell's absolute integrity and their appreciation of the skill, efficiency and faithfulness with which he has conducted the affairs of the institution.

By the board of directors, E. D. Jordan, president; F. S. Converse, vice-president; H. Blanchard, secretary; Otto H. Kahn, G. R. Fearing, Jr., H. M. Sears, W. C. Sayles, H. D. Burnham, B. L. Flanders.

RELIEVES WHOOPING-COUGH OF ITS TERRORS

Swiss Preparation Very Successful Abroad.

It is so unusual to find a preparation that is of any value in cases of whooping-cough that the mere announcement of a successful preparation is startling.

Whooping-cough is considered to have its turn, but in cases that have been treated with Sirolin, the new Swiss preparation, the troublesome disease has been checked in short order.

Sirolin is a tonic and antiseptic which soothes respiratory organs and strengthens the tissues with remarkable rapidity.

You can secure further information about Sirolin from druggists, or from the Sirolin Co., 90 West Broadway, New York City. Hiscox & Sargent Drug stores got all leading druggists are distributing Sirolin with wonderful success.

NAMING OF OLNEY HELD UP BY TARDY REPLY OF BRITAIN

Richard Olney of Boston has received the offer of the American Ambassadorship to England. Today Mr. Olney refused to make any other statement than the following: "Mr. Olney admits having received the offer of the American Ambassadorship in London."

The appointment will be sent by President Wilson to the Senate over the head of Secretary of State Bryan, as soon as replies are received from the English government that Mr. Olney's designation will prove acceptable, Washington dispatches to the AMERICAN declare.

The AMERICAN learned definitely today that the delay in sending the name to the Senate is caused by the failure of English officials to reply promptly to inquiries as to whether Mr. Olney will be acceptable.

HUNT MISSING MARLBORO MAN IN THE WEST

MARLBORO, March 11.—Clifton Bowker Russell, the missing treasurer of the Marlboro Co-operative Bank, is believed to be in the West or in Canada. Friends believe he will be found in Seattle or in Winnipeg. Information that he is found that way, it was reported today, is in the hands of Marshal Barry.

A new treasurer took Russell's place today. He is Claude E. Williams. The missing treasurer forwarded his resignation when he disappeared, to President E. O. Brigham, and it was on the call of the president that the directors met, heard Russell's resignation read, and then elected a successor.

Wanted Books Examined.

The examination of Russell's books and accounts was expected to be completed today. So far, nothing amiss has been found. It is believed he fled while temporarily deranged owing to worry over an insurance business which he had purchased recently.

One of the most remarkable features of the case of Russell is the fact that on Thursday evening, when he mysteriously disappeared from Marlboro, he wrote to the State bank examiners, directing them to examine the accounts and the books of the bank.

He assured them they would find everything in apple pie order. He asked them to give the widest publicity to their finding, his strong reason being to save his reputation and the feelings of his family as much as possible.

Treasurer Russell mailed that and two other letters from the North Station postoffice in Boston. His was a registered letter to his wife and children, telling them that he was going to "leave this part of the country."

Worried Over Waning Income.

The third letter he sent to Eugene O. Brigham, president of the bank, tendering his resignation as treasurer, a position he held for the past years, and admitted discouragement over financial matters.

That he worried over a depleted income was made clear by a clause in his letter to President Brigham in which he expressed regret that he was less his position as treasurer of the Marlboro Electric Light, which is said to have paid him between $1,000 and $2,000 a year. In his letter he stated that he had never recovered from the effect of this loss, which by the way occurred six or seven years ago when the electric company changed hands.

State bank examiners who have been making a thorough audit of the bank since Friday, reported today that it was too early yet to state emphatically whether or not there is any shortage or irregularity, but thus far the funds have been found to be intact.

The directors of the bank have issued a statement to shareholders and to the public declaring that there is not the slightest deficit and that there will be no ill effects or inconvenience felt by depositors or the bank on account of the unexpected departure of Treasurer Russell.

Wage earners are the chief patrons of the Co-operative Bank. While at first concerned over the disappearance of Treasurer Russell, they appear to have been assured by the statements of the bank directors.

The officers of the bank are: Eugene O. Brigham, president; Sumner F. Willard, vice-president; Claude E. Williams, treasurer; Alexander Berry, C. F. Whitney and C. H. Stevens, auditors. There are fifteen directors.

The bank was incorporated April 10, 1890. It has an authorized capital of $1,000,000. It pays 4½ per cent. The forty-fifth report shows 1,030 shareholders, 6,396 total shares and 360 borrowers.

ASK $135,630,000 FOR PRUSSIAN RAILROADS

BERLIN, March 11.—The Prussian government introduced into the Diet a bill authorizing loans amounting to $135,630,000 for state railway purposes. The principal items are as follows: For new lines and additional tracks, $25,000,000; for buildings, $25,250,000; for rolling stock, $47,500,000; for narrow gauge tributary lines, $1,875,000.

Simple Home Remedy for Kidneys and Bladder

A simple and easy way to cure weak, deranged kidneys or bladder is to use the following formula: Get six ounces good pure gin and add to it one-half ounce Murax Compound and one-half ounce fluid extract Buchu. Take one to two teaspoonfuls of this mixture after each meal and at bed time. Nearly all good druggists have these ingredients. Anyone can mix. One should be sure to get good pure gin, also the genuine Murax Compound, which comes only in a sealed wooden package, as any substitute will not give the desired results.

Weak kidneys or bladder should be given attention as soon as any of the well-known symptoms are noticed. Neglect in the matter is dangerous, as the serious forms, Bright's disease, chronic rheumatism or dread diabetes, may develop. These can be avoided if the above simple mixture is used before complications set in.—Advertisement.

MISS ISABELLE VALLE, the "most beautiful Western girl," who is critically ill after operation for appendicitis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 11.—Miss Isabelle Valle, of No. 4955 Maryland avenue, said by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., to be the "best looking girl in America," is in a critical condition in St. Luke's Hospital, here, following an operation for appendicitis. St. Louis society greatly fears she may die.

During a visit to Newport and New York last year Miss Valle was the guest of Mrs. Vanderbilt. Upon her return she gave out interviews ridiculing New York society in which she said:

"You go to visit an ultra-fashionable woman in New York and you never know that her husband lives with her."

SAW BLIND GIRL HIKER DRAGGED FROM PARADE

WASHINGTON, March 11.—General John A. Johnston, district commissioner in charge of the police, explained to the Senate sub-committee investigating the suffrage parade that the permit for the parade had not been delayed a month as had been charged, but was issued three days after request. The delay was caused by the indecision of the women themselves in determining the route of the parade. He said Miss Paul's request for route had been endorsed by the commissioners and forwarded to the War Department, which had refused it. He said he had told Miss Paul that no force of men would be able to prevent glues and jeers from the crowd, but that the marchers would be afforded protection.

Miss Mary Melvin of Baltimore, a blind girl, was dragged from the suffragette procession here on March 3 by officers to the crowd of spectators and with difficulty rescued by her friends, according to the testimony today of Rev. J. H. Mythen of Baltimore.

He complained that many police officers were surly and indifferent, and that a policeman when asked to keep order said: "Try it yourself."

Edward F. Droop, president of the Washington Board of Trade, and a member of the public order committee of the inauguration, testified that according to his observations Chief of Police Sylvester took all necessary precautions to preserve order.

MUCH DISEASE IS DUE TO FEAR OF COMING AILMENTS

"During my experience on a small-pox quarantine ship," said John Beazley Webb, the English nerve specialist, "I could not help noticing that the greater majority of cases had been contracted by fear more than anything else. Of course, these cases had to come in contact with some smallpox subject in order to contract the disease, but their nervous fear had increased considerably their chance of catching it.

"This brings out a phase of nervous debility which I have not spoken of before," he went on. "The dread of suffering from nervous debility is far more liable to contract disease than the person whose mind is in perfect control of the organs of the body.

"Nervous debility has many symptoms that I have made up my mind to mention only those which people who have used Tona Vita with good results have told me they have suffered from, such as: Neuralgia; a dry and rough skin; becoming irritated at trifles; sleep broken by dreams; a heavy feeling about the eyes; numbness in the limbs or a poor appetite.

"It is handled by all Boston druggists."

GIVEN RIGHT TO SEE BABY, PENDING SUIT

The marital tangle between Millard F. Cottrell, the wealthy restaurant man, and his wife, a prominent Back Bay and Brookline woman, over the custody of their child was straightened out by Judge King in the Suffolk County Divorce Court today, when he allowed Mr. Cottrell to see the baby without the presence of his wife or his mother-in-law.

Ada B. Cottrell, the wife, in November, 1912, applied for a divorce in the Norfolk County Court. In her bill she named Miss Irma E. Bolton, No. 35 Mt. Everett street, Dorchester. The case was transferred to Suffolk County and will come up at the opening of the May session of the divorce court. The five-year-old daughter was kept by the mother pending action by the court.

Today the well-known restaurant man came before Judge King. He stated that every time he has gone to see his daughter his wife and her mother stayed in the room.

GRAY HAIR TURNS ITS NATURAL COLOR AFTER APPLYING SAGE TEA

Mixed with Sulphur, It Darkens Beautifully and Takes Off Dandruff.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, bring back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents.

Some druggists make their own, but it's usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's" which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is the best remedy for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and to stop falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a well-known downtown druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This requires but a few moments, by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever.

MISS SARAH A. M'DONALD of Boston, who is suing Frank A. Messenger, the woolen importer, for $75,000 for alleged breach of promise.

LEARN CAREER OF GIRL WHO ASKS $75,000

Behind the blighted romance of Miss Sarah A. McDonald of the Hotel Oxford, who is suing Frank A. Messenger of the Hotel Inverness for $75,000 for alleged breach of promise, is a story of a young girl of sixteen who left her home to come to Boston to enter a business career and who later fell in love with her employer.

That was a dozen years ago. The young girl was successful in the business career she had mapped out for herself. It is said that some of her relatives broke with her and that she changed her name. Later she became confidential clerk to a widely known importer of woolen fabrics.

The girl is Miss McDonald, now a winsome young woman of twenty-eight. The wealthy importer is Mr. Messenger, whom she is suing. Miss McDonald, it became known today, is a Taunton girl. She left her home in that city twelve years ago, coming to Boston. She is said to have changed her name from McDonough to McDonald. For ten years she was Messenger's confidential clerk.

Misses Emma, Margaret and May McDonough of Taunton are sisters of Miss McDonald. One of the sisters told an AMERICAN reporter that they have no interest in the affairs of their sister. She said:

We have no interests in our sister's affair. She has not been at home for twelve years and we have seen her only a few times. She has nothing to do with us.

I do not know where she is. Her affairs do not interest us in the least and, therefore, I don't wish to discuss the matter.

Miss McDonald claims that during the Fall of 1912 Mr. Messenger became very attentive to her and that he asked her to marry him and she accepted.

"Darling little pet," "Precious little darling" and "Little bunch of perfection," are some of the endearing expressions in letters which may figure in Miss McDonald's breach of promise suit.

LOOK FOR DRAFT OF TARIFF BILL IN ANOTHER WEEK

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The preparation of the tariff revision bill by the House Ways and Means Committee, it was learned, will probably be able to announce the full results of their deliberations on the tariff revision bill by March 20. Such questions as wool, cotton, and sugar will not be finally decided until the committee is nearly ready to report.

Meanwhile the committee is allowing no authoritative information to leak out concerning the rates which it has agreed to or partially agreed to. The report to be issued with the proposed legislation will be comprehensive.

A caucus of the Democratic members of the House will be called shortly before April 1 to decide whether the revision shall be in the form of a single general bill or shall be schedule by schedule.

'SHOW ME,' SAYS 'DAD,' TO GIRL'S 'I'M WED'

Wooed and won within a week and then the ringing of the wedding bells following an elopement, while her father grew nervous waiting for her, tells the romantic story of how Miss Marion Beatrice Gilmour, a young Brookline society girl, became a bride in New Orleans while on a trip with her father. News of her unusual love romance came from New Orleans today.

Miss Gilmour is the daughter of William Gilmour, a prominent Boston insurance man, with offices at No. 134 Water street. The family lives at No. 859 Tappan street, Brookline. The daughter is now Mrs. Burton, French, the bride of a young electrical engineer whom she married after knowing him but a week.

It was a case of love at first sight, according to the news reaching today. Last Friday the insurance man left Boston on a business trip South.

"Take me along, father," his daughter pleaded. "Oh, I'd just love to make the trip."

She went, too. At the South Station they were seen off by a number of friends, whose next word from the travelers was the news of the romance.

Father Paces Hotel.

While his daughter was speeding away to be married, Mr. Gilmour was pacing up and down the lobby of the Grunewald Hotel, in New Orleans, the dispatches said. The daughter, with young French, hurried to a Gretna Green, the famous marrying ground for all New Orleans elopers, across the Mississippi River in Jefferson parish, where the knot was quickly tied by Justice of the Peace Daunenhuer. The young couple were unattended and officers about the justice court served as witnesses to the ceremony.

Mr. Gilmour was in his room in the hotel when the telephone rang and his daughter, breathless with the daring of her deed, whispered:

"Papa, I am married. My husband is by my side."

Mr. Gilmour managed to stammer out something that sounded like: "Bring me the proof, I will believe it."

He wasn't angry, just excited at the suddenness of the affair. Mr. Gilmour said, according to today's dispatches, he was "floored" because of the way his daughter took a husband, but he had seen her, put his arms around her neck and forgiven her, and was prepared to make the best of the circumstances.

"Sudden," Says Family.

At the Gilmour home in Brookline today, it was stated that father and daughter left home last Friday. The family had never heard of young French, and believed he was first introduced to his bride on the steamer on which the trip was made from New York. Only a few prominent members of the family would make was that "it was very sudden."

Lady Paget Plans Louis XIV. Fete in London for June

LONDON, March 11.—Lady Paget, Sir Arthur Paget's wife, daily grows stronger, to the great delight of her friends, and she is deep in the preparations for a great fancy dress ball which she intends to give this Summer. It will not come off till June 5 next, but a great many of the arrangements are already settled.

It is to be a Louis XIV fete, and the interior of the Albert Hall, where it will be held, is to be made as like the gardens of the palace of Versailles as possible. There will be fountains and clipped yew trees, and all the formal decorations of that period, and the whole foundation of the scheme will be a lovely shade of peacock blue, to suggest the sky of a Summer night.

Louis XIV and his court will all be represented, and the rest of the guests will come as the people of the different nations who were at the court at that time.

NEW YORK PUPILS POOR AT FIGURES

NEW YORK, March 11.—Children in the New York schools are poor at figures according to Stuart A. Curtis, who assisted the committee of the Board of Estimate in its investigation of the school system. Tests made of more than 33,000 children show that the New York youth jumps of results in his arithmetic faster than the average in eighteen other city school systems where tests have been made. But while the New York boy is fast he is notably inaccurate and shows "very poor reasoning faculties."

GIRL CRIPPLE TO BUY HOME WITH L CASH

With $10,000 in damages coming into her crippled hands, after three years of weary suffering, thirteen-year-old Josephine Romano of East Boston today thought only of her "Papa and Mamma." She will buy a home for the family.

Josephine's hands are crippled for life and her girlish grace is marred through burns received in stumbling against a "live wire" in the rear of the Lexington street entrance of the Boston Elevated Railway Company. That was in September, 1911.

The little girl has just been awarded $10,000 damages, one of the heaviest verdicts ever returned against the Elevated. Asked today what she will do with the money, Josephine burst out:

Plan for Home for All.

"I haven't got the money yet. But, as soon as I do, the first thing I want is to provide for my papa and mamma, who have been so very kind to me during my long sickness."

Josephine and her father and mother have made little plans. It has been decided that hey will put part of the money into a home, which is to be the little girl's property. The family will live in it, moving out from the basement they now occupy on the top floor at No. 317 Lexington street, East Boston.

The rest of the money is to go in the bank, with the interest paid to Josephine. The child's hands tell the pitiful story. They are scarred and drawn, with twisted, helpless fingers. They are like withered hands. It seems particularly pathetic that a girl, with much promise of beauty, should have to exhibit these blighted hands and wrists. Her upper arms are all right, but from the elbow down the cruel electricity burned the life out from the flesh.

Girl Crippled for Life.

Holding out these hands, Josephine said:

"My body and my hands are terribly burned. I am crippled for life. Everyone has been very kind. My schoolmates do not speak to me about my hands.

"I think $10,000 is a lot of money. But, of course, I won't have control of it until I come of age. My papa will buy a home for me, which we will live in—Papa and Mamma and Erin, my little sister, and I. The rest of the money will be put in the bank and I will have the interest. I shall keep on going to school. I am in the fourth grade at St. Mary's Parochial School. You see, I lost three years after it was burt. I can't use my hands.

"They took me to the City Hospital and it was there two months. Two operations were performed in trying to straighten out my hands. Then I was taken to the Children's Hospital for two more months. Three more operations were performed on my hands, but with no success. They couldn't straighten them."

MONARCHISTS HAVE LANDSLIDE IN SPAIN

MADRID, March 11.—Evidence that monarchist feeling in Spain is growing is shown in today's official returns of the election to the Cortes. The official count showed 843 Monarchists elected, against seventy Republicans. The defeat of Republican candidates was unprecedented, and Count de Romanones, the Monarchist Premier, will have a safe working majority.

Physician Gives Recipe for Gray Hair

A Well Known Physician and Author Gives Simple Home Recipe That Will Darken Gray Hair.

Dr. Stanton Burroughs, the well known physician and author, recently made the following statement: "Gray hair can be easily darkened by the following simple recipe which you can mix at home. To 7 oz. of water add a small box of Barbo Compound, 1 oz. bay rum and ¼ oz. glycerine. Apply it to the hair every other day until the desired shade is obtained. It not only is an excellent hair darkener but at the same time removes dandruff and other ills of the scalp. I use it myself and have no hesitance in recommending it to my patients. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost."—Advertisement.

WOMEN CAST RECORD VOTE IN CAMBRIDGE

Despite the inclement weather the heaviest vote cast by women in years was polled during the municipal election at Cambridge today. The male vote was light.

Women in Cambridge can vote for School Committee, and soon after the polls opened at 8 a. m. many fair daughters of the University City were at the voting booths in the downpour ready to cast their ballots for Mrs. Florence Lee Whitman, candidate for School Committee.

Mrs. Whitman was opposed by Dr. Leo F. Myles, a Democrat. Mrs. Whitman had the indorsement of the Cambridge Citizens' party, the Young Men's Progressive Republican League and the Independent Voters.

Another issue which made the Cambridge election this year of great interest to women was the mayoralty race between Mayor J. Edward Barry, seeking a third term, and Arthur Blanchard of the Young Men's Progressive-Republican League. Mayor Barry, besides being a Democrat, was indorsed by the new Citizens' party.

In addition His Honor has made it known that if he wins today's election he is likely to forsake bachelorhood. No wonder the girls of Cambridge were anxiously awaiting the closing of the polls at 4:30 p. m.

A battle for Common Councilor was being waged in Ward 8 today, and another contest was for assessor between James H. Casey, Democrat, and Julius Mayer, Young Men's Progressive Municipal League.

WILSON CALLS SENATOR LODGE IN CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The issue of the proclamation calling a special session of Congress and the final decision as to whether tariff revision alone shall be discussed at this session, or whether currency reform and other questions shall be introduced, were the matters uppermost in President Wilson's mind today.

To assist him in reaching a decision, President Wilson summoned a number of Senators and Representatives to the White House today to get the benefit of their advice. Senator Gore, the blind statesman of Oklahoma, was the first to arrive, followed by Senators Lodge, Smoot and Stone, members of the Finance Committee, and Senators Johnston and Bankhead of Alabama. The President today tendered a reception to the members of the United State Court of Customs Appeals, the Commerce Court and the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

ALL-STAR CAST AT MAJESTIC BENEFIT

On Easter Tuesday afternoon, March 25, an all-star show is to be given at the Majestic Theatre for the benefit of the United Improvement Association. The play will include scenes and players from many of the big productions now in Boston.

RICH BREWER SHOT BY THIEF WILL RECOVER

PROVIDENCE, March 11.—How he waited on the stairs at his home, knowing that above him was a burglar, and how his father was shot as together, unarmed, they came face to face with the man upon opening a closet door, was told by Arthur L. M. Molter, son of Henry T. Molter, a wealthy brewer, at his home, No. 1,447 Westminster street, today.

"I first noticed something was wrong," said young Molter, "when I found a window in my room over the porch open. Father laughed at the idea that there was a burglar in the house, but when he went upstairs and threw open the closet door in his room there he stood, pointing the longest double-barreled pistol at me I ever saw.

"I was not excited, and threw up both hands at once, crying 'Don't shoot, don't shoot.' I guess he thought I intended to attack him, for when I turned to run he fired. The shot missed me, but I was not hurt. I was only thinking of getting away, and if I had been able to pull father back I have no doubt that he would have gone without shooting. As it was, he shot, and got away."

Mr. Molter is resting comfortably today, the wound not being of a dangerous character.

Marion Now Has Electric Starter on New Models

Frank Wentworth of the Boston Marion Company announces that the Marion has an interesting change in its self-starter equipment. After thorough tests it has adopted the Westinghouse self-starter made by the Westinghouse Electric Company of Pittsburgh for the Marion de Luxe as a part of its regular equipment. It has also made provision for the installation of this starter upon the 30-40-horsepower models at a nominal additional cost.

The Westinghouse system embodies a number of interesting features which are exclusive to it and make it a decided improvement over electric starters now in general use. Principal among these is a roller clutch, which absolutely prevents the small electric motor from being driven backward. It also prevents the gas engine from turning the electric starting motor at a speed which would be destructive.

Throughout the early part of the season, while equipping its cars with the most successful gas starter, the Disco and Prest-O-Lite tank, the Marion Company was thoroughly testing the electric system which it has adopted. It is simple in operation. By pressing a pedal under the driver's foot a small gear is engaged with teeth cut in the flywheel, and at the same time the electric motor is automatically started. When the gasoline engine takes up its regular operation it disengages the gear and this releases the switch thereby stopping the Westinghouse motor.

Marion cars are equipped with dynamo electric lighting system and this also charges the auxiliary storage battery. The latter furnishes current for the self-starter. The Marion de Luxe is now completely equipped electrically—electric starter, electric dynamo, electric lights and electric horn, the touring car and five-door roadster, and the "Rebeat" will continue to be equipped with the Disco acetylene starter and Prest-O-Lite tank, unless the electric appliance is specifically ordered.

TELLS OF THREE WATCHWORDS IN BUILDING CAR

By J. B. ECCLESTON,

General Sales Manager, Oakland Motor Car Company.

There are three great watchwords in automobile construction. The first is dependability. It is the great and important thought. A manufacturer says to his engineering department: "Give us a car that will go and keep on going, one that you don't have to tamper with—one that will give steady satisfaction.

"After dependability, give us simplicity. Give us only the absolute mechanism necessary to drive a car at the rated horsepower—a clean cut chassis, free from cumbersome units, forework or rods, levers and cross members. And after simplicity comes accessibility. By all means give us a chassis that you can get at in a minute. It means a better cared for car."

Of course, it is understood that the general appearance of a car receives the necessary consideration, and so, the successful car must be balanced by a high mechanical standard and equal attention to looks.

To eliminate power waste, the manufacturer uses the unit power plan of construction.

By this method, the maximum horsepower is delivered to the rear wheels because friction is eliminated; also the use of extra universal joints by the adoption of the unit power plant. When you transmit power from one unit to another, you waste a little of it through every reduction. In the unit power method of construction, the motor, clutch and transmission shaft bearings are perfectly aligned on one shaft and the power waste is very slight, if there is any at all.

In the matter of details, the good automobile manufacturer is as careful as a fashionable ladies' tailor. For instance, we found that by stuffing and upholstering cushions and backs at certain angles, the passengers' comfort would be materially increased and that hours could be spent in the car without any fatigue. You may be sure that this construction was quickly adopted.

"Little things" sometimes prove "big things," and it is the so-called "little things" that should be watched in the construction of a car. Take for instance the brakes and steering gear. Both are important. You want to feel safe about your steering gear. The basic metals entering its construction must be of the best material. You don't want to have it snap, endangering your life. These important things are watched. The steering gear should be made of heat-treated drop forgings. The brakes should have large surfaces and be lined with raybestos and carefully adjusted.

OLDSMOBILE HAS A POWER PUMP ON THIS YEAR'S TYPE

One of the many new refinements on the Oldsmobile Six, that is creating interest at the shows, is the Oldsmobile power driven air pump, which is attached to the motor and supplies air for the tires. To anyone who has ever pumped a tire by the old hand method, especially on a hot day, the new power driven pump will appeal as a very important addition to the many improvements designed for greater comfort.

The distinct feature of the pump is that compression is secured through a tightly fitting piston and cylinder, the piston being actuated by a toggle mechanism wherein the piston is attached to one end of the actuating arm and the crankshaft applies its power at the centre, giving a piston stroke twice as long as the throw of the pump's crankshaft.

NEW IDEAS AT SHOW INTEREST AUTO PUBLIC

By J. C. KERRISON.

There are many things at the automobile show which appeal to even the most blase of motorists. The standard displays are everywhere, representing as they do the very best in motor vehicle construction, but aside from this there are many new and novel features—features that are interesting and features that call forth expressions of wonderment that they had never been discovered before.

There are at least two, if not three, entirely new propositions in the vehicle line, one being found in the basement and the others in the main hall. One of these is the electrical speed gear change, another an entirely new car and the third a rotary motor. The latter is that having the rotary valve type of motor.

These three appeal most strongly to the man who has seen the evolution of the motor from the early days to the present period. Three or four men were talking yesterday, and they came to the conclusion that there has been but very little changes or advancements in the standard line of cars, the improvements, as has often been said, being mainly in the matter of detail and refinement.

It is a noticeable thing at the show today that the morning hours are being devoted to those who are really interested in motor cars, who come to see and to learn, rather than from mere curiosity. The salesmen and others connected with the show were early on hand to take care of those who might desire information or showed inclination to purchase a motor vehicle, and there were lots of opportunities.

It is an absolute fact that this is a retail show, retail sales having been made by many of the concerns exhibiting and the indications are that in the matter of sales the show will go down as a record one, and that when they close its doors on Saturday evening next, everyone connected with the same will be perfectly satisfied with the results of the week's work.

It is a noticeable fact that there are a good many working chasses scattered around the two halls, which are attracting a great deal of attention, and especially is this true at those booths were the exhibitors have been keen enough to have a man conversant with the mechanical details and workings of the same give talks on the various portions of the vehicle. It is really a show of working models, there being more of them than in previous years.

Pullman Type of Roofs Is Feature of Alco Berline

Among the cars which are attracting wide attention is the Alco Berline limousine, which is featured by a Pullman type of roof, tilted forward slightly, and its luxurious appointments.

By means of the Pullman roof it is possible to obtain perfect ventilation without causing a draught. Attached to the windows on the doors is a handle lowers or raises the window to the desired height.

There are eleven electric fixtures in the Berline: the two headlights, the two dashlights, and the tail light, a dome light in the driver's tonneau and an automatic step light under the door on the curb side of the body.

JOHN ROSE GIVES TALK AT SHOW ON THE RAMBLER CAR

Educational talks by men trained especially for the purpose are among the features most attractive to the crowds at the show. John Rose, whose previous training has included experience in the pulpit and on the stage, arrived Monday and took charge of the educational work in connection with the Rambler Cross Country chassis.

Rose has appeared in connection with all the big shows of the country for some years past and is well known to Boston people who attend the automobile show. He describes in a popular way the features most desirable in all cars, answers any reasonable question that may be asked and entertains the crowd with an anecdote now and then to illustrate a point.

Woman Designs Car Displayed at Auto Show

In the basement of the automobile show is an automobile designed by a woman. She is Miss Margaret E. Knight of South Framingham and she has produced something quite different from anything that is exhibited in the big show.

Miss Knight designed the motor and the transmission, while a man designed the body. It is a six-cylinder sliding crescent valve or sleeve valve engine, quite unlike any that has ever been built, yet in some ways it works upon the same basic principles of the sliding sleeve motor invented by Harry Knight.

The body of the car is startling in its design. "Birdie" Munger, a noted body builder, is the designer. It is a torpedo type with the hood more accentuated than any of this pattern seen here. There are no foredoors. The only entrance to the cars is from wide doors in the tonneau.

The front seats are of the Pullman type and can be adjusted to suit the convenience of the passengers. The seat next to the driver operates on a swivel and in this way is accessible from the tonneau. Another novel feature is an ice chest under the rear seat. The car is done in gun metal and the sweeping torpedo lines give it the aspect of a powerful car.

RUNNING BOARD CLEAR.

Running boards of White cars are not impeded with tool boxes or unsightly accessories, preserving the clean appearance of both sides and straight body lines. A storage hamper is provided in the rear for tools.

Speedometer Aids Driver to Keep Within the Law

E. L. Vail of the Hoffecker Speedometer Company of Boston, who is a prominent figure at the local automobile show, declares that this instrument is doing a great good for the motoring public.

"The speedometer, if it is capable and reliable, is a great aid in the increasing demands for better traffic regulations," declares Vail. "It is not impossible for a car owner, who is accustomed to driving constantly to become unconscious of exceeding the speed limit of his particular community. He may be as sincere in his belief that he was within the bounds of the traffic rules as an honest man, but at the same time without the aid and guidance of a reliable speedometer he may get himself into disrepute."

"THE CAR WITH A CONSCIENCE"

When you are visiting the Oakland Motor Car Exhibit see —The beautiful new body designs.

—The Sociable Roadster (seating three passengers, single seat).

—The aluminum steps instead of the conventional running boards. This means a quieter and cleaner car at all times.

—The perfected unit power plant, the construction that reduces friction to the minimum, does away with distortion and loss of power.

—The solid German silver, V shaped radiator. A very beautiful design.

—The luxurious turkish cushions. They fit your back.

—Examine the beautiful work on the different bodies and notice with what minute detail each one is finished.

—Inspect the equipment carefully. Notice the fine fitting tops. Notice how shapely and good looking they are.

—Notice the dash front—how handy the various appliances are.

—See the car in the Gold Frame. The most beautiful machine on exhibition.

—Oakland cars are offered in four and six-cylinder models and in a wide range of body designs. $1,000 to $3,000.

Chalmers

Can You Imagine a Thousandth Part of an Inch?

All Chalmers working parts are built accurate to 1-1000 of an inch.

In the Chalmers exhibit, on the main floor of the Mechanics Building, Chalmers factory men—the experts who actually build Chalmers parts—are showing how this wonderful accuracy is obtained and telling what it means to the purchaser of a motor car.

Do not fail to see this instructive exhibit of Chalmers manufacturing methods and Chalmers accuracy. It is one of the most important features of the motor show.

The chief inspector of finished parts in the Chalmers factory is in Boston to show you the painstaking tests for hardness and toughness to which all motor parts are submitted.

Another expert will show you how Chalmers pistons, connecting rods and other moving parts of the motor are balanced one against the other to insure perfect smoothness of operation.

All of the parts of a high quality car which you have wanted to study at close range will be shown you by factory experts in the Chalmers exhibit.

Here are the standards by which you should judge a motor car. The Chalmers exhibit takes you behind the scenes—shows you the inner works—gives you a basis of comparison for all other cars.

Chalmers cars have all the features of comfort, beauty and convenience which you can get in any car at any price. In addition they have the real quality which is the buyers' guarantee of satisfaction through many years of service.

Do not leave the motor show without seeing with what painstaking care Chalmers cars are built and tested.

CLEVELAND FOUR IN THE MAIN HALL AT AUTO EXHIBIT

There is a good deal of comment on the fact that the entire central portion of the main building at the Auto Show is occupied by Cleveland manufacturers. The main aisles east and west and north and south divide the centre of the hall into four spaces, and they are occupied by White, Winton, Stearns and Peerless, all built in Cleveland, O.

While the exhibits are equal in size they differ widely in the styles that are shown. The White Company has the largest number of cars and the greatest variety of styles. One of them—a six-cylinder, sixty-horse-power touring car—has been sold to George W. Harvey, a Boston contractor.

COLONEL BENTON IN COLLISION AT SEA

Colonel and Mrs. Everett C. Benton of Belmont, in letters to Boston friends, tell of a collision at sea in which their boat, the Husseo, was rammed by a large vessel off the South American coast. They were forced to float about in life boats several hours.

Makes Your Hair Soft and Fluffy

"Most shampoo mixtures," says Mrs. Mae Martyn, in the Los Angeles Star, "rob the scalp of all oily secretion, leaving it dry and harsh, and the hair grows brittle and is hard to manage. This causes dandruff, falling hair and premature grayness, making a woman ten years.

"A reliable shampoo mixture can be made at home by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a teacup of hot water. Pour this on the scalp and rub well, then rinse carefully, and you will find it leaves the hair soft and glossy and puts the scalp in a healthy condition.

"Shampooing with this mixture is a delight and costs but a trifle, but you should be careful to get an original package of canthrox."

MANY KINDS OF STEEL USED IN PEERLESS CAR

In the big Peerless six-cylinder cars, on display at the Automobile Show at Mechanics building, there are more than fifty different varieties of steel, many of which have been produced by heat treating and the application to the motor car of the most recent discoveries in scientific metallurgy.

The Peerless Motor Car Company came to the conclusion some time ago that a scientific study of the structure and nature of steels offered one of the greatest opportunities for the improvement of the modern motor vehicle. A metallurgical engineer was retained and laboratories established.

Knowledge of steel and its treatment has been increased by investigations carried on in the plant. No one kind of steel can be made to serve for all the parts of chassis. To secure a material that will withstand vibration, torsion, abrasion, shock or a steady heavy pull required in each case, a different sort of steel or the same steel treated in a different way.

In Peerless cars and trucks fourteen original steels are altered by so many processes that as they are assembled there are forty varieties, each differing from the others and each adapted with scientific precision to the work it is expected to do.

Heat treatment consists of raising the steel to a certain temperature and cooling it in a certain way. It is immersed in various kinds of baths during the process. Sometimes it is submerged in a pot of molten lead, sometimes in various chemical slats. It is cooled in water, in oil or in air.

Some remarkable things are accomplished by heat treating. The special alloy used in Peerless live axles, for instance, is heat treated to such a strength that a bar seven inches in diameter would hold up the combined weight of 75,000 men. If a Peerless steering knuckle were twenty-seven inches in diameter it would sustain at one stage of its preparation the weight of the largest office building in the world—the Metropolitan in New York.

One result of heat treating has been that parts have been given a combination of qualities that had never been procured before.

Show Notes

Among the many attractive exhibits none are attracting any greater attention than is that of the Buick, which has two of its models pleasingly displayed in a brass-railed enclosure. The cars are set on Oriental rugs that are in harmony with the color scheme of the cars, which is emphasized by drop lights.

Manager J. H. Johnson, who returned to Boston in time for the opening of the show, has fully recovered from his recent illness. He made an extended trip abroad during the past three months, and from his personal appearance it has done him a world of good.

* * *

Manager Walsh of the Oakland Company struck a popular chord when he placed a chocolate-colored model of the Oakland in a gold frame with a black background. The lighting scheme brings out the beauty and grace of the lines to perfection. As one approaches it from a distance it looks like a huge oil painting of a motor car set in a frame. This particular exhibit is in the Exhibition hall on the east wall of the building, and is one of the sights of the show.

Hugh Chalmers, the famous father of the car bearing his name, is spending a few days at the motor show. Mr. Chalmers was always pleased with Boston and its shows, as well he might be, for they have ever been pleasing to Chalmers.

These prizes are to be awarded shortly after the Boston show, so that the public will have an opportunity to see a busy lot of salesmen in action at the Jeffery exhibit throughout the week.

MASSACHUSETTS WOMEN DEMAND CHIEF'S HEAD

Resolutions of Bay State women calling on the Massachusetts Congressmen and Senators to demand the removal of Major Sylvester as Superintendent of Police of the District of Columbia, because of the alleged inadequate police protection furnished for the suffrage parade and pageant in Washington, were today forwarded to President Wilson and Governor Foss.

The resolutions were passed at a meeting of Massachusetts suffragists in Huntington Hall. They were drawn by Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Stanley McCormack of the National Suffrage Association, Mrs. Lewis J. Johnson, wife of Professor Johnson of Harvard; Mrs. Agnes M. Jenks of New Hampshire, Miss Matilda Fraser of Boston, Miss Annie Page of Brookline and Miss Alice Parker Lesser told their experiences in the parade.

GRAY AND DAVIS STARTER IS POPULAR

Says Lubrication Is Big Factor in Motor Car Buying

Frank J. Rowan, advertising manager of the Cutting Motor Car Company, states that lubrication is one of the most important features that should be taken into consideration in buying a motor car, and it is one to which the average purchaser pays too little attention. The man purchasing his first automobile is prone to neglect this important point because he generally feels that if the general specifications, covering the simpler matters of wheelbase, size of tires, horse-power and the like, are right, the lubrication system is what it should be.

This is where the layman makes a grave mistake, which often leads to no end of trouble. The Cutting system, Mr. Rowan believes, is one of the most practical and efficient yet devised and as economical as any on the market, for one gallon of oil will average between 500 and 600 miles. Oil is pumped by means of a gear pump located on the outside of the lower crank-case, and driven by spiral gears from the cam shaft. It is forced to a main duct, cast integral with the crank-case.

THOSE Hidden Values are on exhibition at CASE salesrooms, 8 Columbus Av.

The Sign of Mechanical Excellence the World Over

Here, with space to spare for minute examination, you will find the Case Forty, the car whose worth is more apparent the more it is driven.

The real value of the Case Forty is not in its appearance, not in its accessories, not in its upholstery—which are superlative—but it is hidden and is found only by mileage. It is what we hide in a Case Forty that really counts.

We Spend Where Others Save

We could be satisfied with producing a car of its fine finish. We could save hundreds of dollars and would temporarily sell just as many cars. For the Case Forty at $2,200 looks like any $5,000 beauty.

But we have learned much from our 70 years' experience in the manufacture of fine machinery. Our cars must be built to last a long time, because our reputation is at stake in them.

We could save on our motors, clutches, transmissions, drive shafts, wheels and other vital parts.

We could save on axles if we used other than complete Timkens. We could cut our assembling cost in two.

BUT, a car so built, would not be of Case value, though it might be just as attractive to the eye. When average cars begin to break, the Case Forty still keeps young. The hidden values come to light. Paint and polish may wear off but the vital qualities are still there, more certain than ever.

We Save Where Others Spend

BUT where others spend, we save. Our savings mean to you EXTRA value in your car. We save in the selling end of our business. Our immense selling organization—our 65 Branch Houses and 11,000 Dealers in United States, Canada, South America and Europe—was organized years before we even thought of building cars. And we created no new business. Money spent here must come out of the buyer's pocket. But by saving this expense, we can put the difference into Quality.

In this way alone, is the Case Forty at $2,200 possible.

See this wonderful car. Compare its face values with others. Think of its hidden values. Consider its splendid equipment. It will be our pleasure to explain further to you by catalog and by personal attention why Case "30's" and "40's" are of incomparable value.

Have You Heard That Chassis Lecture?

A little experience in the pulpit—a little on the stage, and a personality you will not forget made John Rose a lecturer worth hearing.

He gives that remarkable chassis talk at the Cross Country exhibit. It's the big educational feature of the Automobile Show.

Stop and listen to the technical talks of salesmen at any other exhibit. They are able men—but do they make you understand?

Then hear John Rose.

He tells the story of the Cross Country in simple words. He drives it home with a laugh-provoking yarn.

You are not bored but educated and entertained.

He demonstrates the U. S. L. electric starting and lighting system in such a way that you leave with two thoughts in your mind—it's silent—it's efficient.

The crowd is always large, but Jeffery men are trained to practice courtesy.

BOOKS OF DEALERS IN ROTTEN EGGS NOW UNDER FIRE OF PELLETIER'S EXPERTS

Suffolk County Prosecutor Begins Searching Investigation Into Methods of Trust Charged by Cassidy With Traffic Endangering the Public Health.

District Attorney Pelletier today began an investigation of the filthy traffic of the so-called egg trust, exposed by Harry P. Cassidy. In a statement Mr. Pelletier says:

I have started an investigation against the so-called egg trust and have assigned Inspector Silas F. Waitte of Boston Police Headquarters on the case.

The books of Brown and the Standard Egg Company are now in my office and are being examined by me.

UP TO LAST SUNDAY CERTAIN LARGE BOSTON BAKERS WERE USING ABOUT TWO TONS OF ROTTEN EGGS DAILY IN THEIR CAKES AND PIES.

Mr. Cassidy told you this Sunday, and again yesterday. Today, not over a hundred pounds of rotten eggs are being sold daily.

The traffic is paralyzed. One big bakery has arranged to buy its eggs hereafter in the case, and have them broken on its own premises. This is the only safe way for any bakery that wants to give its customers clean food.

But the rotten egg men, Brown, Schwerer, Fox, Rotteburg, Eisteneberg, Gottfried, Winer, are not doing much business this week. Monday they discharged several of their employes, and today they are breaking out only a few eggs, which they forlornly hope to be able to sell.

TODAY THE LEGISLATIVE FIGHT TO SMASH THE EGG TRUST OPENS!

At a hearing before the Committee on Public Health, a bill introduced by Representative John F. McCarthy, and designed to prevent the sale of rotten eggs for food purposes, will be debated.

The opponents of the bill will doubtless be there. The friends of pure food, who are sickened at the thought that they have been eating cakes made of rotten eggs, should appear, too, to fight for the bill.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Alarmed at the vigorous investigation instituted by District Attorney Pelletier, and feeling the possibility of a legislative enactment that would drive them out of business, the rotten egg men of Boston were in a bad way today.

For a week or ten days they have suspected that measures were being taken against them. They in their turn, have taken steps to establish an "alibi." Saturday night, after a visit from the Rotten Egg Chief, who came from New York to look the situation over, the local rotten egg dealers were feeling quite secure.

Monday morning their telephones were busy with calls from their customers—bakers and restaurant men—who wanted to cancel all contracts.

THE ROTTEN EGG MEN WERE LEFT WITH AN IMMENSE STOCK OF ROTTEN EGGS ON THEIR HANDS.

The rotten egg men do not know, today, how they are to get rid of those eggs. They are facing financial loss and business shipwreck.

Morris Brown, for instance, has his store on Fulton street packed full of eggs. In the basement of that building there are over a hundred crates—possibly two hundred—of eggs. Those eggs were rots and spots when he bought them, in many cases. And many crates of those eggs have stood in his cellar for days or weeks. They are not in cold storage.

WHAT MUST THE CONDITION OF THOSE EGGS BE NOW?

The officials of the State Board of Health should have sampled these stored eggs long ago. If they had done their duty, it is certain that many crates of these eggs would have been condemned before this, and dumped into the sewer.

Hundreds of Cans Held.

Brown also has eggs in cold storage—some at the Quincy Market Cold Storage warehouse on Commercial street, and some in the East Boston Terminal Refrigerating Plant. The other egg dealers also have their eggs in storage in many cases. THERE ARE HUNDREDS OF CANS OF ROTTEN EGGS IN A FROZEN STATE IN THE STORAGE HOUSES OF BOSTON TODAY.

The officials of the State Board of Health should investigate these eggs.

The storage laws of the State provide:

"No article of food shall be held in cold storage for a longer period than twelve calendar months."

Joseph Eisenberg, who has a little rotten egg company of his own, received a postal card the other day from the Quincy Market Cold Storage Warehouse telling him that they held a lot of his canned eggs which had been in storage for some seven months. Now those eggs were at least a year old before they were broken into cans. For the rots and spots which go to fill the cans are sorted out of other eggs which have been in storage.

Eggs Two Years Old.

If you happened to buy a cake made from eggs from that particular lot, you would eat EGGS TWO YEARS OLD. District Attorney Pelletier, in his investigation of the rotten egg business, is looking into these big stocks of canned eggs in storage. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, those eggs were rotten when they were put into storage. Imagine what they must be by now.

As I told you in my first article on the rotten egg business—it has taken a month to collect the evidence in this case.

During the last ten days, the rotten egg dealers have become suspicious.

What do you suppose they did?

They organized a brand new business, and they called it "The Boston Tanners' Egg Yolk Company." I call it the "alibi company"—because it was organized to give the rotten egg dealers an alibi in case they were attacked.

Let me explain.

In the process of tanning leather, the yolks of eggs are used. Therefore, there is a market for these yolks. Joseph Eisenberg told me last week that he gets from a cent and a half to two cents a pound for his tanners' eggs.

The eggs cost him a little more than that—when you include the expense of breaking and delivering them. He loses money on all he sells at that price. His profit lies in the fact that he picks out the least rotten of the eggs and sells them to bakers at from eight to twelve cents a pound—which means a dozen.

These rotten egg men pay from twenty-five to seventy-five cents a crate for their eggs. Therefore, ordinarily they lose money on all they sell to tanners.

Morris Brown was the first of the rotten egg men to see the value of a 'tanners' company as an alibi. He had an employe named Benjamin Bunshoft—whom all the rotten egg men call Bennie Bunshaft. Brown agreed to give Bennie Bunshaft a few of his rotten eggs daily, at a nominal price of a cent and a half a pound, and Bunshaft could sell them to tanners and make a little for himself out of the business.

Bunshaft was instructed to call himself the Massachusetts Tanners' Egg Yolk Company, of No. 171 Fulton street.

Brown now occupies the store at Nos 163 and 165 Fulton street. He formerly occupied the numbers from 163 to 171.

What Happened February 24.

No. 171 Fulton street was therefore the 'alibi store.' But it was closed tight and locked up to ten days ago, when the rotten egg men first scented trouble.

Yet Monday, February 24, one of Brown's wagons backed up to Brown's place at No. 163 Fulton street, and unloaded some twenty crates of eggs marked on ends "Not Edible," in Brown's cellar.

These eggs were addressed to the Massachusetts Tanners Egg Yolk Company.

Benny Bunshaft didn't sell an average of a hundred pounds of eggs a day to tanners. Yet here were at least six hundred pounds of rotten eggs addressed to his company.

THE TRUTH IS, THIS MASSACHUSETTS TANNERS EGG YOLK COMPANY WAS SIMPLY M. BROWN'S PLAN TO DEFEND HIMSELF IN CASE OF PROSECUTION.

It was M. Brown's "cyclone cellar," his "alibi joint."

As throwing further light on the workings of this company:

February 25, at half past nine, one of my assistants went to Freight House No. 8 of the New Haven road in South Boston, and asked if there were any eggs there for Morris Brown.

It's the Same Concern.

"You mean the Massachusetts Tanners' Egg Yolk Company, don't you?" asked the clerk. "It's the same concern. There are four cases of tannery eggs from New Bedford consigned to the Massachusetts Tanners' Egg Yolk Company, in this freight house, and there are sixteen cases more at freight house No. 12 from New York."

That is, Brown was buying tanners' eggs—rotten eggs—under the disguise of this alibi company of his—then selling those eggs to bakers for food purposes. By this ruse he evaded the strict federal law which forbids the shipment of rotten eggs from State to State for food purposes.

Then the Standard Egg Company decided they needed a cyclone cellar also—in case of trouble. One of their customers had been complaining.

So Jacob Fox and Samuel Gottfried of the Standard Egg Company, and Bennie Bunshaft, Morris Brown's man—organized the Boston Tanners' Egg Yolk Company, incorporated, with a capital of $5,000 in 500 shares of $10 each. They do business at No. 171 Fulton street—under Brown's wing.

And this is the way they do business:

How They Do Business.

Rotten eggs are gathered from the market or from the freight houses, and sent to No. 171 Fulton street. There they are broken into cans and carried into Brown's or over to the Standard Egg Company. In these two places, frozen eggs and fresh-broken rotten eggs are mixed together, and the poisonous mess is then delivered to the bakeries.

I am no lawyer and I make no claims in that direction.

But I do make these charges—and I leave it to you—the jury of the people—to decide whether my charges are true:

I CHARGE THE ROTTEN EGG MEN ARE SELLING ROTTEN EGGS TO THE BAKERS OF BOSTON.

I CHARGE THEY ARE CONSPIRING TO SELL THESE ROTTEN EGGS—THAT THEY ARE CONSPIRING TO VIOLATE THE LAW.

If my first charge is true, they are subject to a fine.

If my second charge is true—they are subject to a SENTENCE TO PRISON.

DO YOU, MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN OF THE JURY, FIND THESE ROTTEN EGG MEN GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY?

Do you want to see these men pay the legal penalty for their crimes. Then join me and the AMERICAN in our fight against the rotten egg trust, and make your voices heard in the demand that the city of Boston be purged of this shameful traffic.

The Hearing Today.

I haven't reminded you of the hearing today. The Committee on Public Health gave a hearing upon a bill which would end this rotten egg traffic forever.

If you believe this bill should pass you should have come to the hearing. You were needed there. For there was little doubt that the rotten egg men would find some champions for their cause.

Alton E. Briggs of the Fruit and Produce Exchange has opposed every pure food bill which has been considered thus far by the Legislature. But I scarcely expect to find Mr. Briggs in defence of this hideous traffic.

There is an inspector of the City Health Department who believes a "spot" egg is all right. "It's just like a rotten apple—you cut of the rotten part and the rest is good. In the egg you pick out the rotten part and the rest is all right."

But I don't believe this inspector will appear to defend the rotten egg traffic.

Then there are various professors in local educational institutions who have testified in rotten egg cases, in defence of the rotten egg.

I hope these will identify themselves, going on record either for or against the rotten egg traffic.

THROWS BULL AND SAVES FALLEN MAN

BROOKFIELD, March 10.—Merton E. Wilson, superintendent of the C. P. Blanchard estate, seized an infuriated four-year-old bull by the tail and threw it just as the animal was about to gore Mark Wilson, after throwing him thirty feet. The bull charged its attack to Superintendent Wilson, but he managed to get hold of a piece of wire attached to a ring in the animal's nose and threw it again. Seeing that Mark Wilson had reached a place of safety, he let go of the wire and skipped nimbly into the barn. It took three men with pitchforks nearly an hour to get the angry bull tied up.

MENTAL CRUELTY AS PLEA OF 'BAT'S' WIFE

DENVER, Col., March 11.—Neither Bat Nelson, Mrs. Nelson nor their attorneys today would discuss a conference held last night. It was understood Mrs. Nelson's plan to ask for a divorce on the grounds of mental cruelty would be carried out. Nelson will take a vacation at once. His manager has cancelled all engagements during March and April.

LUNCHEON FOR MAYOR.

Mayor Fitzgerald will be given a complimentary luncheon by the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange at the City Club, Friday, at 1 p. m.

A CHILD'S WASTE CLOGGED BOWELS

Makes It Cross, Peevish, Restless and Feverish—If Tongue Is Coated, Give "Syrup of Figs."

Children dearly love to take delicious "Syrup of Figs," and nothing else cleans and regulates their tender little stomachs, livers and 30 feet of bowels so promptly and thoroughly.

Children get bilious and constipated just like grown-ups. Then they get sick, the tongue is coated, stomach sour, breath bad; they don't eat or rest well; they become feverish, cross, irritable and don't want to play. Listen, Mothers—for your child's sake don't force the little one to swallow nauseating castor oil, violent calomel or harsh irritants like Cathartic pills. A teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs" will have your child smiling and happy again in just a few hours. "Syrup of Figs" will gently clean, sweeten and regulate the stomach, make the liver active and move on and out of the bowels all the constipated matter, the sour bile, the foul, clogged-up waste and poisons, without causing cramps or griping.

With "Syrup of Figs" you are not drugging or injuring your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, it cannot be harmful. Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

The Wretchedness of Constipation

'I'LL FIGHT TEN YEARS FOR RIGHT,' DAKOTA DAN TELLS ANGELA MORGAN

By ANGELA MORGAN.

I'll win out if it takes ten years. I'll take this case before the Grand Jury. I'll put it up to the people of this country. I'll remand an investigation by the government. I'm the real Dannie Blake Russell, and I'm going to prove it!"

Intrepid as ever, and even more determined, "Dakota Dan" has taken fresh breath for the rebuttal fight now on the way in the famous Russell hearing and declares he has some large surprises in store for his opponents.

As I stood face to face with this astonishing man, noting his every feature, listening to his vivid statements, studying the quick play of feeling in his eyes, I had to admit, with all the other students of the case, that the great puzzle is baffling as ever.

You say to yourself, when you look at this claimant for the Russell fortune and hear him speak: "Here, now, is certainly a square looking type of man. He has a square face and square shoulders and a square manner. He not only seems willing, but anxious for a complete investigation of his claims."

Then you summon to mind the countless claims of his opponents and all the maze of contradictory evidence in this mammoth case, which has broken the world's record for duration, and your mind almost reels before the eternal question: "Is this the real Dantel Blake Russell or not?"

"Dakota Dan" sat before me in the small reception room of the Hotel Curtis and told me the things in his story. He is a roughly hewn specimen of man, with a stockily built frame, the manners of a round-and-ready Yankeman, and yet withal a sort of diffidence that bespeaks gentleness beneath the bark.

He has rather wondering, open hazel eyes, looking out through large rimmed glasses, and he has a large nose and a large, strong chin. His mouth is a pleasant feature, gentle and shapely.

Has Big Surprise.

"Yes, sir," he repeated, holding his soft felt hat against his chest, "I'm going to call on the government for an investigation. There must be such a thing as justice in this country and I'm going to have it."

"How do you mean to call on the government?" I asked.

"I'm going to send the testimony on to Washington and I'm going to send—" he checked himself. "I can't tell you just what I'm going to send. But it's a big thing, and it's the ruling that will win my cause. It's the big surprise I have for my opponents."

"Dakota Dan" shifted his feet and let go his grip of the soft felt hat, so that it rested loosely and comfortably against his vest. Every once in awhile, as we talked, he seemed to forget himself and, as if by force of habit, make a motion as if about to put the hat upon his head. But he always saved the situation just in time.

"I've been seventy-two days on the witness stand," he said, his chin sunk deep in the collar. "I've been seventy-two days on the witness stand, and I'm ready to go seventy-two more, if they want it. They can't trip me up and they can't tire me!"

"Can't tire you? I should think you'd be worn out by this time."

"No, sir! A man can't get tired fighting for his rights. They can't discourage me, no matter what they do. I have about fifty witnesses for the rebuttal. I have witnesses who knew me as Daniel Blake. I have witnesses who knew Russeau and the whole Russeau family."

"You have a lot of new evidence, then?"

"Dakota Dan" nodded.

"I Will Go Limit."

"Do you realize what it means if I win my fight? It doesn't mean just my getting my inheritance, but it means putting impostors in where they belong. I tell you, I'll go the limit to prove what they've done."

He shifted his feet again, and rubbed his chin.

"This sort of thing couldn't happen in any other State but Massachusetts. It couldn't happen if I had a jury. If this case could go before a jury, they'd settle it quickly enough. And I tell you, it's going before a jury before I'm through.

His chin sunk again into his collar and he began to talk of his brother William.

"I don't want to say anything against my own brother, but everybody knows he was always queer.

"William is being influenced by my enemies. Poor Willie—he always was a queer boy."

Dakota Dan's eyes took on a reminiscent look and he stared straight ahead of him at the mental pictures he recalled.

"He was always shutting himself up and away from everything, and he wouldn't get interested in things the way other boys did. People think he was such a student. He wasn't at all—except that he studied botany and things like that. He wasn't interested in much else besides flowers. As a lad he read novels, too.

Tells of Man in Gray.

"My, but he was stubborn. We couldn't do anything with him, when he made up his mind to have his own way.

"Once, when he objected to something father wanted him to do, he went out under the trees in the yard and stayed there three days and nights, had to take him his food.

"He used to go up to his room and stay there and I took his meals to him there. His wouldn't eat them half the time. I have witnesses who know and can testify just what a queer boy Willie was."

Dakota Dan went on to emphasize his belief that the entire case is a matter of conspiracy against him.

"It certainly seems strange," he observed, "that a man would look straight into the eyes of his own brother and deny him."

"That's just it!" cried Dakota Dan, quickly, his eyes flashing. "He doesn't look at me. He won't look at me. He never has really looked into my face like he ought to look."

ORDER SAVES WOMEN FROM POLICE SEARCH

The vigorous protest made by the girl garment strikers and their friends against the searching of women prisoners by police has resulted in an order from Police Commissioner O'Meara forbidding the practice, unless conditions make immediate search necessary, and no police matron or suitable person is available. Society women who led the protest, rejoiced today that a change in conditions has been promised.

The sole conditions under which a search may be made, Commissioner O'Meara rules, are:

When there is good reason to believe that the person has in her possession a weapon, a poison, a drug or other like means of causing death or injury to herself or to another.

When there is good reason to believe that stolen property is hidden about the prisoner and there is imminent danger that it may be thrown away or destroyed.

Searches in such emergencies will be made with all possible regard for decency, by direction and under supervision of an officer of rank, should one be present, and with a witness, if obtainable, other than the searching officer. After a search by a police officer has been made, the facts relating to it shall be reported in writing to the superintendent by the officer in command of the division or unit.

Women arrested by the police officers attaching to the stations in Roxbury, West Roxbury, Hyde Park, Dorchester, East Boston, Jamaica Plain, Brighton, Charlestown and South Boston will be cared for as in the past. Matrons have been employed at these stations for many years.

BISHOP LAWRENCE CATHEDRAL SPEAKER

Speaking on the topic, "Common Sense in Religion," at St. Paul's Cathedral today, Bishop Lawrence said: "On the first of January every year the Christian Church starts off with enterprises of great magnitude, involving many millions of dollars and with not a dollar in sight. She has faith based on the experience of centuries that if the enterprise be worth the good will and the faith of the people they will respond, and they do."

STOP BABY'S SKIN TORTURE

Resinol Makes Short Work of Itching, Burning Skin Eruptions.

If every woman only knew about Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, there would be fewer skin-tortured, disfigured babies, fewer mothers worn out by constant worry and loss of sleep, and fewer lives made miserable by skin troubles that have persisted since infancy.

Simple baths with Resinol Soap and a little Resinol Ointment spread on the tortured skin, stop the itching instantly, and quickly and permanently clear away the eruption. And the Resinol treatment is so pure, gentle and absolutely harmless that it can be used with perfect safety on baby's tender skin. Doctors have prescribed Resinol regularly for eighteen years, and thousands of babies owe their skin health to it. Test Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap at our expense. A postal card to Dept. 6-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., will bring you a generous trial, by parcel post. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment in equal jars, two sizes, 50 cents and $1, Resinol Soap, 25 cents.

TERMINAL CHIEF REPLIES TO CRITIC OF SOUTH STATION

Manager W. H. Wright of the South Terminal Company denied today that the South Station is a menace to health, and declares that the accusation of Colonel Thomas F. Doherty before the Harvard Improvement Association is entirely unfounded.

Colonel Doherty in the course of his remarks said that the South Terminal is in a deplorable condition, full of smoke and gases.

"I consider the accusation of Colonel Doherty uncalled for," said Mr. Wright. "It is impossible to clear the South Terminal of smoke when the athosphere is heavy. But when it is in our favor, it is evident that the South Terminal is a better station in this respect than any other in the country."

SEEK ROBBERS FOR 3 BREAKS ON B. & M. LINE

The police of Winchester and Woburn searched today for burglars who broke into three Boston & Maine Railroad stations during the night. In each instance entrance was gained by forcing a rear window. The loot secured by the robbers follows: Cross street station, $1.25 in change and a number of tickets; Central square station, box cigars, three packages of cigarettes and several railroad tickets; North Woburn station, a 500-ride mileage book.

LODGE SECURES $1,250,000 FOR NEW APPRAISER STORES

Boston is to have a large new building for its appraisers' stores. Senator Lodge has secured an amendment to the Public Buildings Appropriation bill authorizing a total expenditure of $1,250,000 for the construction of a suitable building to be used for the appraisers' stores.

This is an increase of $350,000 over the original appropriation and is sufficient to enable the carrying out of the plans which have been delayed for years through lack of funds.

The increased appropriation is due to the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, assisted by Edwin U. Curtis, collector of the port, and Frank Hodges, chief appraiser of the port.

A nine-story building will be erected on what is known as the Otis wharf site, with elevators and necessary equipment. This will enable the appraisers to handle the business of the port expeditiously.

ASK WILSON TO FAVOR WOMAN'S MINIMUM WAGE

CHICAGO, March 11.—The State Senators composing the commission inquiring into the connection between vice and wages of women in Illinois left for Springfield and Washington today.

At the State capital they will confer with Attorney-General Lucy. Then they will go to Washington to talk with President Wilson regarding the chance for a national minimum wage law for women.

For Cleansing the Blood

I have never found anything equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. In our home it is regarded our general family medicine. We use it whenever we are bilious or run down, or have impure blood or that tired feeling. I regard it only simple justice to speak well of this medicine, that has proved its worth so many times. Announcement

Which will be found of rather more than passing interest to any and every man who has the proper idea of economy as it relates to his personal appearance, and who knows what the real buying power of a dollar is when put to work in the right way. The announcement is this—that in addition to the many other leading lines of Good Clothes sold by this Live Store, we have taken the sole agency for

Styleplus Clothes $17

Styleplus Clothes are made in Baltimore by Henry Sonneborn & Co.—a large and very much alive concern founded many years ago by Henry Sonneborn, whose likeness appears in the trade mark above.

These people have hit upon a very commonsense sort of an idea in "Styleplus"—an idea born out of long experience in the field of moderately priced clothing, of which they are probably the largest producers in this country.

Styleplus Clothes are designed to meet the requirements of those men who would pay between $15 and $20 for their clothes, and to meet them in a better, more satisfactory way than they have ever been met before.

We do not claim nor does Sonneborn, that Styleplus Clothes are the best that can be produced. But, we believe that they are the best that can be produced to sell at $17, and fully equal in style, fit, fabric and workmanship to much of the unnamed, unlabelled clothing that many stores ask you to pay as high as $25 for.

Since it is the business of this Live Store to offer every good and worthy brand of men's ready-to-wear apparel, you will find here a complete line of Styleplus Clothes for Spring, all at the fixed price of $17. We are not permitted to sell them less. No one is permitted to sell them for more.

Read the Styleplus advertisement in this week's Saturday Evening Post. See the Styleplus section in our centre window. Come in the store and see how a Styleplus Suit looks on your manly form. The same Kennedy Guarantee of complete and lasting satisfaction goes with Styleplus as with every line of merchandise carried in this Live Store.

ATTRACTIONS AT BOSTON'S PLAYHOUSES

'OFFICER 666' MIRTH-MAKER AT THE PARK

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

The best part of two acts were wasted at the Park yesterday afternoon before "Officer 666" gave any promise of living up to its reputation as the funniest of the season's crop of plays. There was a tameness to the early proceedings that rested heavily upon your dinner, but the riot that followed the entrance of George Nash upon the scene filled you with the joy that comes with good food when it is properly plied.

Young Mr. MacHugh, the author of "Officer 666," apparently, only half finished his play—it was loose-jointed and crude, and was saved from absolute disaster only by its wealth of extraordinary humor. Measuring the farce by its final hour and a half you found it the frankest assortment of men, women and situations of the year.

Nothing could be more ridiculous or impossible, however, than Mr. MacHugh's story of the attempted theft of valuable paintings from the home of Travers Gladwin. In this connection you find Mr. Nash and Edward Abeles carrying the burden of responsibility, with Mr. Nash as the serious dramatic style, dominating every scene. Mr. Nash is not a comedian, but he led the agile Mr. Abeles a merry race during the two acts they faced each other.

250 Pounds of Comedy.

More amusing than the featured "leaders" of the farce was the Officer 666 of Francis D. McGinn. Here were 250 pounds of the most unadulterated comedy that ever found its way into a policeman's uniform. Mr. McGinn minded comedy and breathed comedy —his stupidity was an immeasurable pleasure. Mr. McGinn appeared his work like a man familiar with the job. It was worth the price of a two-dollar chair to meet this hard-working actor.

Out of a tangle of complications in which Mr. Abeles and Mr. Nash swapped characters as fast as impersonated policemen, Mr. MacHugh managed to bring about some astonishing dramatic surprises. If was perhaps the best

Gentlemen:
About three weeks ago I saw your ad for "NURITO," and as I was pretty well used up and doctors did me no good, I tried "NURITO." I only tried three powders when I felt better. I have taken one dollar box and one two dollar box and am able to do my work and care for 100 hens, chickens, pig or more fowl, besides a cow and a horse. I am all alone except Sundays, when my three boys (rather young men are here, as they are working in stores in Boston. As I like the farm, I take care of it so you see, as I would say, I can't go very fast and my limbs get sore. This is the only thing that helps me. I want NURITO put on the drug store where I get my medicine, and so do the doctors here. There are four physicians in town and a lot of rheumatism sufferers. The doctors do not seem to help them much and I wish you would try to get NURITO into Brockton. Lasting a Drug Store at Kingston, Mass., Plymouth Co. I will try and get those I know interested.
Yours truly,
MRS. E. H. BLANK.

Dear Sirs:
Will you please send me another dollar's worth of the "NURITO." I am suffering with lame knees just now. I trust it will do as much good as the other seven powders did.
Please send by return mail, as I would like to take it with me. I expect this week Thursday to go away for a few days' rest and I want to get rid of this lameness and pain.
Very truly yours,

Gentlemen:
Your powders, "NURITO," are all you claim for them. They gave me the only relief I had in three years, and you can use my name to back that statement any way you wish.

Dear Sirs:
I will say that your powders are very effective, and will do all in my power to advertise "NURITO." There is a case of long standing—about twenty years, deformed very badly. Never saw any to help him. I have treated with him, and perhaps by addressing him you might be able to help him. A very bad case, but he is around all the time. It will be wonderful if you can help this man and will be a great advertisement for your "NURITO" in Providence.

Gentlemen:
I wish to inform you that I am getting along nicely and hope soon to be very much better. I may tell you that I have never taken anything before that has given me such relief as your "NURITO" has. Kindly send me a $2.00 box as soon as you possibly can.
I remain, yours truly

P. S.—Should I know of anyone afflicted with rheumatism I will recommend and tell all my friends about "NURITO."

Dear Sirs:
I am a rheumatic invalid and I have paid out a great deal of money for remedies, and seeing your ad in the paper, I began to try it and am on the fourth dollar box now. It is the best remedy I have ever had as yet, but I don't see how I can afford to keep it up, as the expense is more than I can stand.
I want to keep on with the treatment, and I am writing to see what you people can do for me. There are a number in this place who have rheumatism and I can recommend it as far as I have gone with it. I have been laid up with it for five years, have to use crutches all the time, and can't do my own work, but I have received relief so far, and I do want to keep up with your remedy. I feel and have faith that it will help me more than anything I have ever tried, and my people think so, too.
Please answer and do the best you can by me.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. E. WARREN SMITH.

In the short time since "NURITO" has been offered to the public, it is already on sale with the leading druggists in the principal cities from one end of this country to the other. It is as well known on the Pacific Coast as on the Eastern, as well as the Middle States.

We could go on and give you facts enough to fill several pages about "NURITO," all of which would be just as truthful and important as the above, but expense does not allow—therefore, we will have to content ourselves by publishing a few of the hundreds of unsolicited testimonials received by us daily.

Therefore, we urge you to take advantage of this liberal offer—made in co-operation with this well-known Boston firm.

Gentlemen:
I have suffered from rheumatism for several years. During the past two years I have been treated by several doctors have taken many medicines on the market, have taken baths at Marlin, Mineral Wells, and Hot Springs, Ark., but derived little benefit.
My wife happened to see an advertisement of "NURITO" in a Boston paper. She sent $1.00 for a box for me to try. I had not much faith in any kind of medicine. The first box was sent out on trial, but I received another box on Wednesday last. I took one powder after dinner and one after supper. The result is very marvelous. My wife, children and neighbors were surprised to see the change. I feel so much relieved. Am able to walk better than I have for two years.
The lowest I can send $2.00 for which please send me a $2.00 box by return mail, as I wish to get it as quickly as possible.
Very truly yours,
Box 659 JOHN PRICE.

Gentlemen:
The package of "NURITO" through your kindness received this morning, and please accept my thanks. I hardly know how to express in words my appreciation to you. What I say "NURITO" is wonderful the meaning of it. No other words can be employed. The effect of NURITO has been so sure thorough and satisfactory in my case that I can hardly believe my eyes or my senses as the pain left me as if by magic, and the ease I am enjoying now.
You know the condition I was in on Thursday last, and today, Sunday, I am walking perfectly natural; in fact, I walked free from pain Friday morning.
Being now in a helpless condition last Thursday and then to get almost instant relief from such suffering I could not refrain from talking about it. Consequently, eight people have been here inquiring about the wonderful "NURITO."
Very respectfully yours,
E. A. COLLAR.

Dear Sirs:
I have received the "NURITO" and my wife has given it a fair trial. Will say that for five or six years she has been afflicted with rheumatism but now is entirely cured of it and apparently as well as she ever was. I cannot say too much for the medicine.
I have also given it to several of my friends. They all have had the same results.
Yours very truly,

Gentlemen:
I want to express my appreciation to you for the wonderful results "NURITO" has made possible.
I had been suffering for about one year from Sciatica and New Year's Day last Mr. Rebhan who volunteered to send me a box of the powders and naturally having doctored with some of the best professional men in the country, I was dubious as to results, but took the powders as per directions and "Presto" am now a well man, able to attend to my business in a way that was impossible two months ago.
Thanking you again for your wonderful remedy and hoping it may do for others what it has done for me, I beg to remain,
Respectfully,
H. CHILDS HODGINS.

Gentlemen:
It would be wrong of me were I to keep it not longer regarding the blessings which I have received from the use of your wonderful remedy.
For about six years I have been afflicted with a very severe case of rheumatism, which during this time and with increasing pain from year to year took hold of my whole system.
In the effort to get relief from this terribly painful disease, I took all kinds of medicines and tried other means recommended to me, but found little relief. I very often wished that death would put an end to all my pain and suffering which made life a burden to me.
About two months ago I learned of a man who was cured by your NURITO powders of the rheumatical effect and decided to give them a trial. I am glad to say that never in my life have I used any medicine to equal NURITO. I am free from all the pains I suffered so long, and I feel confident that a longer use of it a remedy will entirely free me from my affliction. I have been recommending your wonderful remedy to everyone I have found suffering with rheumatism and know many who have had the same good results.
Wishing you good luck and the best success I am,
Gratefully and sincerely yours
MRS. J. FETSCHER

Dear Sirs:
A grateful feeling prompts me to write you of the fact concerning my case. Having come to the conclusion rheumatism in Central America with me had not been very seriously every spring for a period of six or seven years, I happened to see your advertisement in the New York Times and purchased a box of NURITO. For years I have tried every sort of remedy but I can frankly state that nothing has ever relieved me as quickly and thoroughly as NURITO.
This letter to you is prompted purely by a sense of gratefulness and I shall be ever ready and willing to me to recommend "NURITO" to every sufferer of rheumatism.
Yours truly,

1,300 GAMES ON WON LIST AIM OF PIRATE HEAD

WEST BADEN, Ind., March 11.—Thirteen hundred victories. It is the ambition of Manager Clarke to land this season enough games in the won column to bring the total since assuming the managerial reins of the Pittsburgh Club thirteen years ago up to this mark

In those thirteen years he has won 1,201 games and with anything like a good season he should be able to add 99 more games to his record

Of course he is not anxious to step over the even hundred mark, but he would like to reach this

Such a record has never been approached In fact, there are few, if any leaders on record who have held the reins as a manager for that length of time.

In the thirteen years that Clarke has been at the helm he has recorded 1,201 victories and 732 defeats, giving him a percentage of 621. Other managers such as McGraw of New York and Chance of the New York Highlanders have better averages, but they are for great [illegible] periods.

Chance has a record of having won two out of every three games, a percentage of .667, that is 714 games won, 356 lost. His record was made in seven years

McGraw in ten years has won 905 games and lost 559, an average of .676

Not only would Clarke like to round out an even 1,300 victories, but he would also like to annex another National League pennant and world a championship

In the years he has been manager he led the team to the highest honors in the National League four times. Four times he finished second and once he tied for second honors

Three times he finished third and [illegible] once fourth. He captained and managed the team in two world's championship events, dropping one to Boston in 1903 and annexing one from Detroit in 1909

Pilgrims Get Back to Work

Stallings Coaches the Catchers

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

ATHENS, Ga., March 1.—After a layoff that began last Saturday shortly after the noon hour, the boys of the Boston Nationals were anxious to get out to the ball field today and shake out the reefs in their baseball system. When they had dressed and were ready for the walk to the ball grounds nearly three days had passed since they had touched a ball.

Luckily the soreness had all disappeared from the arms and legs and bodies of the men who began practice here a week ago yesterday and had the rain of Monday come somewhere about Thursday of last week it would have set them back quite a bit. As it is, however, all they needed today was a little preliminary warming up to put them in shape to go at full speed

Of course, the players have not got their baseball strength yet, the pitchers' arms are weak, too. A pitcher's arm is a very delicate piece of machinery and must be carefully nursed.

CECIL THOMPSON IS SPITBALL PITCHER.

Some of the candidates for slab positions throw a "spitter," so called. Of course, none of them has yet attempted to moisten the ball in pitching to the batters. Cecil Thompson is one of the few left handed spitball pitchers in baseball He was bumped pretty hard in a practice game the other day, but this means nothing, because he was simply throwing up a straight ball. He tells me he hasn't used a curve ball in three years. He relies solely on his "spitter."

There was another meeting of the players, in the "swearing room before they started for the ball grounds today. These meetings promise to be very productive. Most of the boys leaguers who come to the majors think they know about all there is to know about baseball but after a brief association with the big league men they find out that they know only the rudiments of the game

It is the purpose of these meetings to put them right on many of the counts and it is said that after the next of the big league managers take the reins with certain that all slips due. His methods ought to [illegible] he has here

Stallings to Coach Catchers.

Stallings said today: "I don't want to appear egotistic, but I don't believe there is a baseball manager living that knows more about the catching department of a ball club than I do. I am going to pay particular attention to the catchers I have here.

"I know I have some first class material and I venture to assert they will be better qualified to catch a game of big league baseball when I get through instructing them than they are now. Fred Mitchell was with me at Buffalo, in part, the way I explain it to coach the pitchers and he will take them in charge from now on. Sweeney will coach the infielders.

"It must be remembered that we have to almost build up an entirely new ball club. We have candidates here from all parts of the country. They have been playing under their own systems. What we have to do is to teach these men how we want them to play ball. They must become familiar with each other's ways, they must get confidence in each other, they must know when to depend on one of them is capable of doing. When these things are acquired we shall have some team-work."

Is a Tireless Worker.

Stallings is certainly on the job all the time. He is a tireless worker himself and he demands tireless work from his players. Thus it will be seen that this week some mighty hard licks will be put in by the candidates here.

Fortunately, they are a willing bunch and very apt pupils. Just what Stallings is, he is able to do with them remains to be seen. He does not yet know quite how they will shape up.

The Boston club has gracefully side stepped Ty Cobb and his bunch. Cobb was scheduled to bring a team here and play a game against the Pirates on March 15, the faculty of the University of Georgia not want to Stallings that is, that day the students would be taking exams. As it turned out that the game is postponed. Cobb will give Boston a chance to call off the game entirely

The reason is said to be, although Rollings will not say anything about it. The truth of the matter is that Cobb is a holdout and under the circumstances Rollings does not want to appear to be a [illegible] Cobb a big figure ally. It crosses the path of Rollings

So the club will compromise by lending Cobb a few players with he needs to play the University of Georgia team and let it go at that. On the day that Cobb comes here to meet the Collegians (March 22) the Boston club will be in Atlanta playing an exhibition game.

Sweeney Man of Affairs.

Captain Bill Sweeney is the busiest man on the squad. His teammates call him Captain Bill because [illegible] became Bill is a partner of his father in a patent medicine business. When Bill is not playing or sleeping he is [illegible] the product of the Sweeney & Son factory, and when he is not doing that he is writing and placing advertisements of said product in the newspapers of the towns he visits.

He also writes a daily letter home to his family and underwrites accident insurance, so it can be easily seen that Captain Bill is a man of affairs. On top of it all, Bill finds time to shoot a game or two of pool now and then.

Halpin to Compete in Quarter Mile Race at Buffalo

Thomas Halpin, the B. A. A. quarter miler, will compete in Buffalo next Saturday evening in the Seventy-fourth Regiment's games which are to be held in their armory in that city. Halpin will be the only Boston athlete to make the trip. New York will be represented by Abel Kivlat and Alvah Meyer.

The Boston athlete will compete in the quarter-mile event which is an open handicap affair. Kivlat will start in the three-quarters of a mile handicap race. This is the final meet that Halpin will take part in this season as the Unicorn runner has been competing since last November and needs a rest.

VAN DYKE REFUSES TO SIGN CONTRACT

Van Dyke, the Worcester pitcher of last year, who had a taste of major league baseball as a member of the Red Sox in the closing days of the American League race in 1912, announces that he will not accept the terms of the Worcester club, to which club President McAleer sent him back. Van Dyke fears that he is a bit too good for the little New England league, and while he has not any protest to make about the treatment given him by the world's champions, believes he is eligible for a league with a better standing.

ENGLISH BATTERY CANDIDATES REPORT

Coach Fred L. O'Brien of the English High School baseball team called the battery candidates together in the English High School drill hall. Frank Brannon and Button, the regular battery of last year, and Leather Woodworth, also of the 1912 nine, were among the candidates. The following reported: Catchers [illegible] Dolan, Hall, Perry, Jacobs, Fowler, Ogden, Woodworth. Pitchers [illegible] Brannon, Russell, Ziegler, Smith, Casey, Brown, McCahan.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 11.—Miss Agnes Robbins, Host [illegible] was eaten in the semi-final of the women's single tennis championship of Florida by Miss Adelaide Browning, New York, 6-2, 6-0. Miss Robbins came through to the semi-final by defeating Miss Agnes Kennedy, Philadelphia, 6-2, 6-2. Miss Louise Haight, New York, is the other finalist

OUTDOOR PRACTICE FOR TUFTS MEN

Coach John Macdonald of Tufts and his squad of field candidates took advantage of the warm weather yesterday to hold their practice on the old campus. Captain Atwood's half and one milers are coming along in great shape. He is developing some fine cross-country runners among the distance men.

BOSTON WOMAN IS WINNER AT TENNIS

PINEHURST, N. C., March 11.—Miss Helen Barnett of New Haven, Dorothy Ballentine of Detroit, Harriett Norman of Lancaster, Pa., and Jeanne Pudney of Boston advanced in the opening play of the woman's singles even in the usual Pinehurst tennis tournament.

WIN FOR NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, March 11.—New York defeated Pittsburgh here in the first game of the National Three-Cushion Billiard League series, 50 to 47, in 67 innings. Charles McCourt of Pittsburgh made a run of 9, equalling the season's record. Joon Dankelman of New York made a 6.

SPRING.

THE poets of the land are wont to sing,
The joys of mild and gentle Spring;
Of budding trees and blossoms rare
And birds that warble in the air;
Of brooks that babble to the sea
And odors wafting o'er the lea;
Of fishing in a shady spot,
And sundry other sorts of rot.

BUT if he had to pack his grip
And journey on a training trip
And ride across the blessed land,
On cars that bump to beat the band,

And write a lot of bunk per day
Without a thing worth while to say,
Of charley horses, aching arms,
And veterans, and false alarms;

O' baseball yards and sliding pits
And curves and smoke and two-base hits;
Of bush league finds, and "second Cobbs,"
And athletics fighting for their jobs,
And then to lie awake and fight
Mosquitoes all the livelong night—
Methinks the poet would not sing
The joys of mild and gentle Spring.

* * *

Spring training has started in the White House. Woodrow Wilson at bat. Isn't the name "Big Stick" Teddy used to bat his batting average wild he closely watched. To-day it is 1,000

* * *

Fighting seems to be condemned in various cities throughout the United States. Why discriminate? We're all fighting, fighting for the money. That's all the men in the ring fight for when the cold side of it is taken into consideration

* * *

HARD LINES.

Jim Thorpe at least got a big job out of the discovery that he was a professional But in St. Louis an amateur soccer player was declared a professional because he accepted a dime for his services. It doesn't pay to be a piker. If you are determined to get it, make it worth the while.

* * *

They don't always run true to form, those ball teams, but Riley tells us the New Jersey nights aren't what they used to. Handicapper, so get a bet down

Stallings already is predicting a high place for the Pilgrims. There's nothing like getting in early. If his hope materializes, then it's great foresight, judgment. Should he fail, affairs are plentiful.

PICKING THE WINNER.

"Who's going to win the pennant?"
That line I hear each day
So often that an answer pat
I've got—"tis this I say:
"If the Cubs should be weaker,
And New York not so strong,
And all the dope on Dooin's team
Should turn out to be wrong,
And if the Reds are better,
Likewise the Pilgrims, too,
And Boss Huggins should get a bunch
Of stars to help him through;
Or if it should be otherwise,
Right up and down the line,
Or one should show much weakness
And another loom up fine,
And this one should be that way,
Or that one lead by far,
Then I should say some team should win
The rag—and there you are."

* * *

THE HOLD OUT.

He wants ten thousand from men before he leaves a ball.
He is a haughty mortal when
The season ends in the Fall.
But when the Springtime rolls around—
And birds begin to sing,
He beats it to the training ground—
A meal looks big in Spring.

TIGER LEADER WILL DEPEND ON YOUNGSTERS

GULFPORT, Miss., March 11.—Two and perhaps three outfielders, four pitchers, one infielder and two catchers—these are the plans Manager Jennings expects to get from the score or more of recruits now working out.

With few exceptions, Manager Hugh is keeping his impressions to himself and he will reserve final judgment on many of the players until after he sees them in actual work against a Class A or a major league team.

The exceptions are Klawitter, Rondeau, Vean, "High Pockets" and Shanley.

"The youngsters have made a great impression on me and I have no hesitation in saying that there was never a better aggregation of recruits," said Jennings.

"There are many players in the American League who do not do their best work in the preliminary practice and it always takes a trying situation to bring out their best qualities.

"These are the sort of players who appeal to me. I do not want men who are brilliant performers in the workouts and mediocre men in games.

"We may get four pitchers from the young fellows here and it is possible we will get five. A team can never have too many good pitchers. We are certain to get two corking good catchers and I believe I am going to have trouble making selections in the outfielders. We also have some good men trying for infield positions."

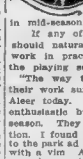
Carrigan Sets Pace for Sox

By L. R. MURDOCH.



HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 11.—"Only an accident could stop us this year," said President James R. McAleer after watching the Red Sox work at Majestic Park today. "I don't see how anybody is going to beat us with this team."

McAleer was inspired to make this prediction by the excellent form the Sox displayed individually, the spirit with which they tackled their practice from the beginning and their splendid condition after their first day's try-out.

Yerkes, Wagner and Gardner have not begun to show any speed yet, but they looked as if a week of work would give them the zing that those who arrived here a week earlier have already begun to display, notably Bill Carrigan, who looked and acted today in mid-season shape and seems faster than last year.

If any of the early squad was to show signs of slowing up it should naturally be supposed that Carrigan would be the man. But his work in practice seemed more peppery than he displayed even during the playing season last year.

"The way the men have tackled their work surprised me," said McAleer today. "I never saw a more enthusiastic bunch so early in the season. They look in great condition. I found them all running down to the park and jumping into the game with a vim. After their practice was over they went away on the jump, too. It is too early, of course, to tell what the new men can do, but they have shown up a lively bunch of youngsters.

"Some of them I never saw before now. Scott impressed me as a nifty lad. Leonard has tackled his workouts better than he did a year ago and several of the new pitchers look as if they may have something."

Jake Stahl hopes to have the regulars who came with the Stahl squad Sunday, spreading up enough for a practice game, today or tomorrow. If they show no ill effects from the first practice, he plans to have them split into two teams, thus tackling actual baseball within three days of the arrival of his men, an unusually early effort.

Give Collins Hard Work.

He expects Ray Collins to arrive here late this week and will give him some hard, steady work to get down to weight. Neither McAleer nor Stahl knew that Collins had signed until last night, when the Sox president received a telegram from Secretary McRoy at Boston, telling him that the Vernoutter had accepted terms.

It is not expected that Collins will be able to show anything this week, of course, but he may be tried in the series with the Pirates if he is in any kind of form.

It was intended to open the Red Sox-Pirates series on Sunday, when a big crowd was expected. But Hot Springs is not the place it used to be. A wave of reform has swept the town. All of the gambling places are closed (on the square, they are actually shut, no peeking) and the new Governor of Arkansas has a bill in his possession awaiting signature, which makes public gambling a felony, punishable by a term in State Prison. It is believed that he will sign it and some of the officials here are honestly believed to be in a mood to enforce the law.

As modern gambling is, in effect, just the same as highway robbery, leading citizens think it ought to be treated as such. They answer the old timers, who attribute a decreased visiting list at the Springs to the prohibition of public gambling, by the argument that the kind of gambling that had dereigned from the "get rich quick" mania had so depleted the purses of hundreds of visitors that they could not afford to pay railroad fares to the Springs.

"We won't try to play Sunday baseball unless the people want it. If they don't want it," said McAleer today. "If there is the slightest opposition, we won't play. We will be in sympathy in whatever the people here want. We have no desire to arouse any opposition or contention here."

Fred Clarke has his Pirates at the same hotel with the Red Sox now, and he is in the same frame of mind. Honus Wagner, "Honus" Wagner is one of the celebrities at the Hotel Eastman. "The Flying Dutchman's" hair is gray now, turning to silver, in fact, but he is still a "live wire" on the diamond. With Cy Young out of the game, Honus has become the patriarch of baseball.

Tris Puts Ball Over Fence.

Tris Speaker was the first Sox to drive the ball out of the park on the first day's work at bat. Speaker smote one of Dutch Leonard's southpaw benders so hard that it sailed on a line over the right field fence. Henriksen followed a few minutes later by catching a fast one served up by Governor Cleveland Brandt and hoisting it high into the same spot.

Stahl had three two pitchers and Mosley, Ainsworth, Foster and Watkins—all recruit flingers—working for him in the offers yesterday afternoon. Mosley and Foster showed better work than the others. Watkins, however, has developed considerable speed. He looks too light yet for a big league pitcher, but left handers are in demand and he will be carefully watched.

Stahl had some of his overweight pitchers chasing flies in the outfield most of the afternoon. They did the work with enthusiasm in the hope that it would aid them in getting into form. He gave the old regular infield about fifteen minutes of practice on the diamond, Engle batting to them and Cady throwing to base. Then the job was turned over to the recruits. Janvrin was placed on first base, Scott at shortstop and Carlstrom at third base.

Janvrin Now Weighs 172 Pounds

In this combination, "Buck" O'Brien and Speaker took turns sifting it at second. Carlstrom made a clever running one-handed stop of one fast drive that made him look like a regular for a moment.

Scott, whom McAleer thinks may be a comer, looks light and very youthful. He showed some good work in the infield, however, under the watchful eyes of McAleer, Stahl and Heinie Wagner. Janvrin has filled out considerably since last Spring and handled the throws very cleverly at first base. He showed, too, that he can develop into a discreet batter.

He has learned much from his minor league experience. Janvrin says that he weighs about 172 now, but he hardly looks that heavy out of uniform. Joe Wood has developed a kink in his right shoulder and stiffness in the arm during yesterday. He worked with the bat most of the afternoon. He has kept off the field, too, because the ankle he turned on a recent hike still troubles him. He is using a bandage on his left ankle and limps when he runs.

Joe Quirk is spending a lot of time looking after "Smoky Joe's" defects, because the "Speed Boy" is still the one and Red Sox hope, in that pennant race. Stahl is very careful with Bedient, his other speed merchant too, but he let O'Brien and Hall have all the work they wanted. The four veterans, however, have not yet started pitching. It is likely that the recruits will carry the most of the burden of serving them up to the Pirates next week.

All four catchers were given turns behind the bat yesterday, receiving the delivery of the seven "rookies." When Collins arrives, Stahl will have an even dozen twirlers in his camp.

CROSS VICTORY OVER MANDOT BIG SURPRISE

By JACK CONWAY.

IF one were to visit the French quarter of New Orleans today he would probably be surprised to see the sons and daughters of the Republic on the other side of the deep, blue Atlantic, who are usually as light hearted and joyous as the robin at the first signs of Spring, wending their way up and down the quaint, old streets with sorrowful eyes and drooping heads.

The French inhabitants of New Orleans in fact, every person whose ancestry goes back to France, has little cause for joy today as Joe Mandot, the French lightweight and the idol of his countrymen, was knocked out in the tenth session in his ten-round bout with Leach Cross, the New York dentist, at New Orleans last night.

Mandot is but twenty-one years of age. This young man has made a remarkable record in the ring, and Frenchmen throughout the world were confident that he would some day win the lightweight championship. They believed that he would vanquish Cross with ease. But, alas, like many another stout hearted gladiator of the squared circle, he fought once too often, and for the first time in his life he lay prostrate on the canvas while the referee toled off the fatal count.

This is the reason why the French people of New Orleans are so downcast today. They had expected wonders from this dapper French youth. But like Marcel Moreau, Georges Carpentier and several other prominent French boxers, he met his Waterloo just as he had obtained a world-wide reputation.

* * *

MANDOT'S defeat was a big surprise to the followers of boxing. It was expected that he would at least hold his own with Cross. For eight rounds Mandot made good and jabbed and hooked his opponent in masterly fashion, but in the ninth session Cross, desperate and bleeding around the mouth as a result of the punishment dealt out by Mandot, landed a mighty punch on the jaw and Mandot went to his knees. This was the beginning of the end, and Joe's seconds tossed up the sponge in the next round.

Young Joe Rivers and Ad Wolgast as the only lightweights who would have a chance of defeating Champion Willie Ritchie. Rivers recently completed Mandot in a twenty-round encounter, but the New Orleans boy has also one victory to his credit over the Mexican wonder.

WADSWORTH-HENDRIE IN BILLIARD PLAY

"Deezie" Wadsworth and Ernest Hendrie, the B. A. A. members who are matched in the unique all-round competition, will resume the contest at the clubhouse this afternoon. By mutual consent they agreed yesterday to postpone the strenuous athletic events till later in the week and to engage in the billiard and pool events. Both are clever players on the green cloth and the billiard room will be filled this afternoon to see the pair in those events.

BABE ADAMS STEPS ON A RUSTY NAIL

WEST BADEN, Ind., March 11.—The first misstep of the season in the Pirate camp occurred when Babe Adams stepped on a long tack, which went through the sole of the "rookie," and penetrated the foot for about half an inch. The tack was rusty and made a nasty looking wound. It was promptly cauterized by Trainer LaForce and no serious results are expected.

JEM HALL IS DYING; FOUND IN A HOVEL

MENAH, Wis., March 11.—Jem Hall, a former well-known pugilist, was found dying of tuberculosis here in a hovel. He is penniless, and his once great physique has wasted away until he is hardly recognizable.

Just twenty years ago last Saturday, Hall was knocked out in the fourth round by Bob Fitzsimmons at New Orleans for a purse of $40,000. The State Antituberculosis Society is now caring for him.

EASY FOR ATHLETICS.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 11.—With all the regulars in the lineup, the Philadelphia American League team defeated the San Antonio team of the Texas League 17 to 12. Bender, Pennock and Brown pitched three innings each for Philadelphia.

BOSTON SHOULD TRY AND LAND A. A. U. GAMES

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

(Quarter-mile champion of United States and Canada.)

Now that the Intercollegiate Association of the Amateur Athletic Union has decided to conduct its annual track and field meet in the Harvard Stadium sport followers will have an opportunity of witnessing one of the greatest outdoor contests in the history of the game.

Harvard is well able to conduct such a meet, as the Crimson Athletic Association has had the experience of holding many previous meets and the location is central enough for any of the many colleges which will come to Boston to take part in the annual blue ribbon event of the collegiate athletic year. Although much has been said about having the Amateur Athletic Union granting the Boston Athletic Association the right of conducting the annual outdoor championships yet nothing definite has been done. For the last two years the games have been granted to Pittsburgh. The meeting of 1911 was conducted by the Pittsburgh Press, which ran the games for the public and did not charge any admission. Last year the meeting was conducted by the same body but an admission fee was charged. It did not prove a great financial success as the contests were poorly attended.

Up to the present time no offer has been made that the contests be conducted in this city, although all of the athletic authorities and heads of the New England A. A. U. realize that this would be the greatest boom that amateur athletics could receive here.

To conduct such a meet it would require at least $5,000 to make it a success. If the B. A. A. would take hold of the meet there is no doubt but that it would be a great success, for the Olympic tryouts held last year in the Harvard Stadium netted the A. A. U. over $10,000.

Allowing for the added interest in that meet it seems more than probable that if the outdoor championships were held in this city that they would pay. The only objection to holding this meet would be to obtain a permit from the Harvard Athletic Association for the use of the great Stadium at Cambridge, and although it would take considerable persuasion to convince the Crimson athletic heads that the Stadium should be used by the A. A. U., it should not be an impossible task. So the A. A. U., in connection with the B. A. A. should by all means apply for the meet.

WIN FOR BUZZEY.

After an interesting three-cushion billiard match, Bussey last night at the White Bear rooms defeated Rose in the tournament for the New England title by 50 to 41.

Stahl Wants to Show Men Home Run Tree

URBANA, Ill., March 11.—Jake Stahl, manager of the world's champion Boston American baseball team, has promised Athletic Director Huff, of the University of Illinois, to bring his club here for two games in April on his way East from the training grounds at Hot Springs, Ark. "Weather permitting, Stahl will come here," said Huff last night. "He wants to show his players the old tree in deep centre, into which he drove a home run against Michigan in 1901, when three men were on bases, the longest hit ever made on the grounds."

ROLLS PERFECT MARK OF 300 IN BOWLING TOURNEY IN TOLEDO

TOLEDO, O., March 11.—All records for an individual game in an American bowling congress tournament were smashed by William J Knox of Philadelphia when he rolled 300, a perfect score. Knox's total count in his individuals was 672, which placed him second in the first 10 leaders.

When Knox began his rolling he totalled but 173 in his first game. He got 199 in his second game, getting a succession of strikes to the end after the seventh frame. He continued his strikes in the third game. On his last ball one of the pins wavered, made a few vibrations and fell into the pit, completing the perfect run of 300.

MATTY BALDWIN BEATS WOOD IN SALEM CONTEST

SALEM, March 11.—Matty Baldwin of Charlestown gained the decision over Roy Wood of Fall River in twelve rounds in a contest for the lightweight championship of New England at the Salem A. A. last night. Dick Fleming was referee. It was a good bout. Baldwin did not attempt to outslug Wood. He won by outpunishing the Fall River cyclone. He fought mostly at long range.

Frankie Mack gave away ten pounds and made a fine showing against "Young" Clarke of Fall River. Mack boxed in cracking good style. Clarke looked fine. He showed a good left hand and was shifty on his feet.

Johnny Boyle of Lowell won over Eddie Kenney of Cambridge in five rounds. It was nip and tuck for three rounds, but Boyle proved too strong and too well conditioned in the fourth and fifth rounds.

Johnny McKeon of Salem defeated Eddie Sawyer of Beverly in six amusing and interesting rounds.

After the bout Ray Wood and his sparring partner, "Young" Clarke, were summoned by the police for taking part in a public boxing entertainment. The directors of the club denied that it was a public boxing entertainment. Wood and Clarke were bailed out.

THE HOUSE ON THE MARSH

A Celebrated Novel by FLORENCE WARDEN

PART I.

"WANTED, a governess; must not sing." I let out the advertisement thus heard vaguely from the Pines I was eighteen, and my youth had been the great obstacle in my getting an engagement, now here was some delightful advertiser who even levied it an advantage. I wrote to the address given inclosing my photograph and the list of my qualifications.

Within a week I was travelling down to Gresham, Norfolk, engaged to teach "one little girl, aged nine," at a salary of £35 pounds a year. The correspondence had been carried on by my future pupil's father who said he would meet me at the station at Redmarsh, the nearest town nearest to Gresham.

It was a glorious day when an elder one in early April, but I was trembling with excitement and fright as the window of the railway carriage as the train stopped slowly into Redmarsh station.

Points Out Escort

I looked out on to the platform. There were few people about and there was no one who appeared at all like the gentleman I had pictured to myself as my future employer. There were two or three fresh faced men who gave me the impression of being farmers and at one end there were two young men engaged in smoking a large motor car which was standing in great extravagance at the side of the train. I gave a hasty glance at them and decided that I would not speak to any of them.

"Here's Mr Rayner himself, ma'am," said he, pointing toward the two young men with the dog.

One of them was looking about as if in search of somebody, and I walked timidly toward him. He seemed puzzled as his eyes fell upon me, then suddenly he raised his hat.

"Miss Christie?" he said interrogatively, growing very red.

"Yes," said I, bowing and blushing, too.

"Well, you come and show me which is your luggage."

I was surprised and rather confused to find Mr Rayner so much more and less self possessed than I had expected. I followed him and pointed out my boxes.

"The dog cart is waiting outside," said he, "let me carry your bag."

I followed him to the station. Three or four big dogs began jumping upon him and me as we came out.

"Down Rover! Down, Luke! Get down Trap!" said he, raising his voice.

I had pictured Mr Rayner's servants, rich as he had when he first spoke to me, and now I remembered how particular he had been in his letters about my music, as I concluded that Mr Rayner sang.

He helped me into the dogcart, carefully wrapped me up with a rug, and then, instead of getting in himself, patted the neck of the brown mare, who turned her head and put her nose into her master's hand.

I was trying to get over my bewilderment. My vision I might have expected that the father of my employer would not be a middle aged, grass-grown man, but a man who did not look more than three or four and twenty was a surprise, and I found him so shy and deferential and seemingly quite frightened considering our respective positions.

He was but and broad and rather massive head dark curly and mustache, gray eyes and a kind of simplicity of expression which perhaps I thought, with his habit of blushing, made him look younger than he was. He left the mare and stood by me again.

"I am afraid you will find the country dull. You will miss the gaiety of London."

"I haven't led a very gay life," said I. "I don't think poor people are very gay anywhere."

Feared for Her Comfort

"But you have not been shut up in the schoolroom before. I can't think how you will stand it. I always hated schoolrooms, but it is a fact that I was never in a school without being told that I was a disgrace to it."

Mr Raynor did not seem much distressed to be made a confession.

"I dare say you were great at cricket or rowing or—or—fighting." I hazarded, feeling that some rejoinder was expected.

"No, I wasn't. I remember giving a boy a black eye once for calling me a dunce. He was quite right, you know. And I remember being surprised that I hurt him so much, for I generally got the worst of it in a fight. They used to say it took a good deal to rouse me; and I didn't do much harm when I was roused," he added, laughing.

"I hope your daughter does not share her father's dislike of school routine," I broke out, anxiously.

He started and looked up at me coloring vividly, and then said, with some excitement in his tone:

"Did you take me for Mr Rayner? The next moment he seemed sorry for my evident confusion, and added, looking away: "My name is Reade. Mrs. Rayner sent her brougham for you, but a wagon ran into it and took one of the wheels off, so I got my cart at your disposal. I hope you don't mind driving in a thing like this?

"Oh, no!" I said.

"That was Mr. Rayner on the platform with me," he went on. Blushing rushed out hot as the lady came up, and he asked me to see to your luggage while he fled him. I don't know why he is so young."

As he spoke Mr Rayner himself came out of the station, being his manlike look at the dog. I saw in a moment that he was a few years older than my companion, and that, while they both wore round hats and Norfolk jackets, he bore the impress of town breeding as clearly as Mr Reade did that of country life. He was slight, and quite with delicate features, with a dark golden beard and mustache. He came up, raising his hat and shook hands with me.

"You have been married at the barbican of Norfolk manners. Miss Christie, I am asking. When is the next train back to Lond n" but I have been warned by my wife not to make my appearance at home without a certain parcel from the "Stores" which has been due at this station about ten days, but has for some unaccountable reason failed to turn up hither to. By the way, I hope my spirightly young friend has been entertaining you?"

"Miss Christie took me for you, Mr. Rayner," said Mr. Reade, shyly, reddening again.

And had now to suffer the awful disappointment of finding that Mr. Rayner is an old fogy, after all. Miss Christie, forgive my gray hairs. You will find me a great deal more trustworthy than any of these gay deceiving Norfolk lads. Now, Laurence my boy, if you want us to get home before the mist rises we had better start."

Mr Rayner sprang up behind, Mr Reade got up in front by my side and took the reins, and off we started, with the five dogs bounding barking and growling along the road as we went. Mr. Rayner was occupied at the back with letters and papers, and Mr Reade, at my side, listened to my comments with flattering interest and appreciation.

"How beautifully green everything is!" I remarked presently.

"Yes, rather too green." Mr Reade rejoined, ruefully. "We have had a wet Summer, and now we are going to have a wet Autumn, I believe, and I'm afraid it will be nothing but a sow up."

"Don't say so, Miss Christie against the place, Laurence," said Mr Rayner, rather querulously.

We passed through a lowlying village, some of the houses of which were flooded in Winter, Mr. Reade told me—up a hill, down a hill, up another sloping road, at the side of which ran the marsh again.

"There is the Aiders, Miss Christie," he said, pointing with his whip to a pretty red house half-covered with ivy and surrounded by trees, which stood below the road on the borders of the marsh.

"Here, Laurence, I'll get down and take to the short cut," said Mr. Rayner.

Employer Takes Short Cut

There was a footpath which led from this point of the road straight to the house through a plantation. After Mr. Rayner had alighted, Mr. Reade and I drove on by the road.

"What a lovely place!" I cried enthusiastically.

My companion remained silent.

"And, oh, what a beautiful pond! I do believe it has water lilies!" I escalined, turning round half breathless at such a glorious discovery.

"I wouldn't have that stagnant water near my house for my children to play about for something," said he in an energetic groan, which surprised me.

I said no more until we drove slowly down the sloping carriage drive through the trees which led to the house, and then again my admiration broke out.

"How delightfully cool it looks with the ivy all over it to keep out the hot sun!"

"Yes, and to keep in the cold moisture, Miss Christie. That ivy hasn't been cut for the last five years, and it ought to be torn down altogether to make the place fit to live in. It is no better than a pest house. He went on, getting more and more excited. "I wouldn't let a lodger live in it."

A shiver went through me. Had I taken a situation in a house which must so very soon be solved, and I was scarcely ready when the servant returned to tell me tea was waiting for me.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

"Here's Mr. Raynor himself, ma'am." said he, pointing toward the two young men with the dog.

and stood by me, apparently examining the harness, while I looked in an ecstasy of admiration at the dark red house thickly covered with ivy, and at the gray stone portico, the pillars of which were stained with picturesque patches of green, while the capitals were overgrown with bronze and brown moss. Then he seized a moment, when Mr Rayner was speaking to the servant, to stoop and say to me quickly, in a low voice:

Mysterious Advice.

"Don't let them put you near Mrs. Rayner's room."

I could not answer, could not ask why, for the next moment he was calling out good bye to Mr. Rayner, and, raising his hat to me, was walking beside the dog cart up the steep drive that led through the garden to the road. I was sorry he was gone. I wanted to ask what he meant by his strange warning.

"Won't you come in? I'm to show you to your room."

It was the gaunt servant who addressed me. I turned, blushing, and followed her, into a low, long hall, dark, cool and old-fashioned, such as the outside of the house had prepared me for; on an oak lined staircase, thrown a few of those short and inconvenient passages which have been added in old houses, from time to time, to a corner room shabby, dark and barely lodging, where my boxes were already installed. I sat down on one of these—the only friendly things I had about me—and began to cry.

Somebody might have, at least, come to the door to meet me." I thought of Mr Reade's words, and began to wonder with a new sense of dread what Mrs. Rayner was like. Was she an invalid? Was she cruel? If not, why had she left the correspondence about her child's governess entirely to her husband?

My tears dried slowly as I went on puzzling myself uselessly about this mystery which must so very soon be solved, and I was scarcely ready when the servant returned to tell me tea was waiting for me.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

The Social Calendar

MANY friends of Mrs. Eugene Noble Foss, wife of the Governor, bade her goodby yesterday afternoon at a farewell reception she held at her home in Jamaica Plain, preparatory to sailing from New York, March 18, on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., to join her daughters, who are in school in Paris. About 150 persons were present. Mrs. Foss was assisted in receiving by her daughters-in-law, Mrs. Benjamin S. Foss and Mrs. Noble Foss.

Mrs. Foss and her daughters plan to pass the Easter vacation in Italy. Mrs. Foss will travel until school closes, when her daughters will return with her in Lee early

The wedding tomorrow of Miss Helen Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Read of "Read's Island," Manchester, to Dr. Francis Lowell Burnett of Beacon street, Boston, will be the first Spring wedding at the Summer Episcopal Church at Manchester. Miss Elizabeth P. Lee of Brookline and Beverly Farms, fiancee of Henry Pratt McKean, Jr., of Boston and Pride's Crossing, is to be one of the bridesmaids. After the ceremony there will be a breakfast at the Read home. Dr. Burnett is a grandson of the late James Russell Lowell and a brother of Mrs. Edward L. Rantoul.

Bishop William Lawrence will lay the cornerstone of the new $120,000 St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Malden, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. William F. Dowty, rector of the church, will preside. Archdeacon Samuel G. Babcock will assist. A large number of the Episcopal clergy of Boston and the clergy of Malden are expected to attend.

Miss Aimee Lamb is to be hostess at a sewing circle at her mother's home on Beacon street tomorrow afternoon. The affair will bring to a close a long series of sewing circles which have proved very enjoyable during the Winter months.

Old Colony Chapter, D. A. R., will observe gentlemen's night tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Joseph Lovejoy on Main street.

A large attendance is expected tomorrow morning at the musical of the New England Peabody Home for Cripped Children to be given in the large ballroom of the Copley-Plaza. It will be the first of a series of entertainments in aid of the surgical tuberculosis department of the home. It will be repeated a week from tomorrow morning at the Copley-Plaza and Saturday evening, March 22, in Steinert Hall. Albert Leonard Squier is to give his illustrated lecture on "The Land of the Palm and the Pine." The Lotus quartette will give several selections.

The annual dinner of the Bank Officers' Association of Boston is to be held tomorrow evening at the Hotel Somerset. Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh, Senator John W. Weeks and Mayor Fitzgerald are among the invited guests.

STINGING

Mabel—Look at this lovely engagement ring Mr. Swete gave me.

Jennie—Yes; it's very pretty. I was quite sorry it was too large for me.

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in the week ending March 9 were 34,000,000 pounds, an increase of 1,164 tons per pound.

Hunting a Husband

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

The Widow's Little Daughter Tells Her Mother About the Fire, to the Dismay of Her Friends

DURING the night it rained. Beatrice Minor, lying awake, listened to the growling of thunder far away below the horizon. Then she heard the soft patter of drops begin on the tin roof of the veranda beneath her window, and fell asleep with the soothing sound in her ears.

But, sleeping, she dreamed, and the dream was a terrifying one. In it she was on the edge of a lonely wood. It was night, and behind the stark, bare branches of the trees lightning flashed intermittently. In her pathway, directly in front of her, was a tall, slender sapling which she feared must be passed. In the ghastly impotence of a nightmare she stood unable to go backward or forward, while the lightning flashed more vividly and the thunder rolled loudly. Suddenly there was a great flare of light, and the sky seemed to split above her, and the tree which she feared burst into flames. Then —crowning horror! the tree called her by name, and its voice was the voice of Paul Maynard. "All this for you!" it wailed. "All this for you!"

The dreaming woman screamed, and the sound of her own scream woke her. The roar of a great thunder clap still rang in her ears. The nurse, roused from a light slumber by her patient's cry, was bending over her.

"Hush, my dear," she was saying. You've had a bad dream."

"What has happened?" gasped Beatrice.

"Only a thunderstorm," the nurse explained reassuringly.

"Oh," sobbed the widow, "I want to see Helen! Oh, I am frightened, frightened!"

Calling for Her Friend

"But Mrs Robbins is sleeping," the nurse reminded her. "And you are entirely safe here."

"But I want Helen," persisted the sick woman, so beseechingly, that the nurse at last yielded to her entreaties and summoned Mrs. Robbins.

Helen entered, candle in hand. "What is it, dear?" she asked with the studied patience of one who has been called from a warm bed at an unseemly hour of the night.

"Oh," quavered Beatrice, "I had such a terrible dream, and I was frightened and —might I see you alone for a minute, please?"

Then, as the nurse withdrew to a discreet distance, the patient asked suddenly, "Where is Paul Maynard? Has anything happened to him?"

In the dim light thrown by the candle, Beatrice saw her hostess start, but she quickly controlled herself and answered so calmly as to disarm suspicion.

"What nonsense you are talking, Beatrice!" she exclaimed. "What could have happened to Paul? Why do you ask about him?"

"Because," insisted the widow, "I have had a dreadful dream about him. Something dreadful has happened to him. I feel it!"

"You are nervous, dear," soothed Helen, placing a cool hand on her friend's hot forehead. "This thunderstorm and the electricity in the air have given you bad dreams. Try to get them out of your mind, now that you are awake and then go to sleep again."

Beatrice closed her eyes gratefully. She felt too weak to urge her question further. Moreover, of course, it was only a silly dream, after all.

Nothing Else Mattered

"I don't believe you are telling me the truth," she said, drowsily. "But I'm too tired to talk. And the children and ourselves are all here safe and nothing else really matters, I suppose, does it?"

"Nothing else," agreed her friend tenderly as she drew the covers over the weary figure and left the room after a whispered work to the nurse. But she paused a moment in the hall, candle in hand. There was a murmur of voices from the floor above, and softly mounting the stairs, she stood for a moment listening outside the door of the room in which Paul Maynard lay. Then, with a sigh, she went back to her own chamber.

"Dr. Yeager's love for Paul Maynard is a wonderful thing," she said to her husband, as she lay down again and settled herself to sleep. "He is up half the night, and yet stays with Paul most of the day. He is one friend in a million."

"Well, Paul is one man in many millions for that matter," muttered her husband.

Once more silence reigned throughout the house, save in a room upstairs, where Dr. Yeager, assisted by the nurse, was changing the bandages on his suffering patient.

In spite of her uneasy dreams of the night before, Beatrice Minor felt better when the sunlight, streaming in through the cracks in the shutters of her room, awoke her, and, after her nurse had bathed her and given her her breakfast, she declared that she was "almost well."

"It is all nonsense keeping me here in bed," she said to Dr. Haynes when he made his morning call. "I am eating well, and if I lie here much longer I shall get fat," she added, with a laugh. "Besides, I'm tired of this room."

To her surprise, the physician did not demur. "I think it might do you good to go into another room for an hour or two," he agreed. "Get ready, and when you want to be moved just let me know and I'll come in and carry you downstairs for a little while. Oh, yes, I will," he insisted, for the widow had made a gesture of protest, "you are not strong enough to walk down safely, and you are light enough for even a fat doctor like myself to carry."

Jean's Prattle

He was as good as his word, and an hour later Beatrice was reeling in an easy chair in Helen's cheerful living room, listening happily to the chatter of her small children, who sat in front of her, gazing into her face with that look of adoration which comes only to the eyes of very small children and very faithful dogs.

"Good morning! You are evidently yourself again," remarked Dr. Yeager as he entered the room.

"I can't rise to greet you," said the woman, smiling and holding out her hand, "for I am under orders. Nevertheless, I am glad to see you. I did not expect to find you here as early in the day as this."

"Oh, it is not very early," answered the doctor easily, stooping to tickle Jean, thus causing the child to chuckle with delight. "How are you, little Miss Minor? Have you been a very good girl so far this morning?"

"Course I have," asserted the child. "And Jack and me have been talkin' to Mavver. And she's gettin' all well now, real quick."

"That's good," observed the physician absentmindedly. "And what have you young people been talking about?"

"Lots of things," said Jack. But Jean seized by a brilliant idea, took up the conversation again.

"We told her about what we've been playing, but not above ve dire. But," twisting him by the hair to capture his attention, "tell Muvver, please, about our house burnin' down—'cause nobody won't let us tell her and all of 'em said we mustn't. But you can tell her, 'cause you're grown-up and a doctor!"

"What nonsense you are talking, Beatrice!" she exclaimed. "What could have happened to Paul? Why do you ask about him?"

"Because," insisted the widow, "I have had a dreadful dream about him. Something dreadful has happened to him. I feel it!"

"You are nervous, dear," soothed Helen, placing a cool hand on her friend's hot forehead. "This thunderstorm and the electricity in the air have given you bad dreams. Try to get them out of your mind, now that you are awake and then go to sleep again."

"All of Which I Saw and Part of Which I Was"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1913, by the International News Service

"And when you see a Man and his Sweetheart you can know Cupid is on the job adding another story to his long chronicle of the world."

ONCE upon a day an old time chronicler of events to show that he knew whereof he spoke, appended to his story the sentence, "All of which I saw and part of which I was."

In the story of the world Cupid is the prize mover and the prize historian. He knows more about the inner causes of great wars, why kingdoms rose and fell, why boundaries were changed, why great victories were won, why the names of men have come bounding down the centuries, why humble lives were filled with sweetness and the wonder of living and great lives were a mockery and a nightmare for all of their greatness—'cause he was and is responsible for nearly all that goes on in this old world of ours.

Cupid is a youngster alongside of some of our graybeards, but he is as old as human nature—and human nature really became nature through him. He has been in on everything—and most of all does he influence the lives of those who live today.

The crusty old bachelor—or the angular spinster may deny his power, but most times those who deny the loudest know his secret influence over their lives, and their conduct better than those who are avowedly his devotees.

He makes of this earth a paradise for the man and the maid —and when you see a young man and his sweetheart together you know that Cupid is on the job—whether they be poor or rich —of low estate or of high—and he is adding another little story to his long list of chronicles which show why the world and the race really continue—and he says that with true love comes peace, content and a broadening human sympathy and understanding.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WIPE, sed Pa to Ma last nite, did you ever stop to think that nother you or me is getting any younger as the swift years is flitting by?

Yes, sed Ma. I have often stopped to think that you look a lot oalder than you did when I first married you. Of course it is only luck with me that I have retained my gurlish figger while you have been gitting fat, but I suppoas the time is sure to cum when even I will look oalder than I did the time that you proposed to me out in the lilac lane.

Well, sed Pa, I am willing to admit, deer, that you look as swete as you did that fateful nite, but I can't say that you look quite so yung. You can keep yure childish spirits up in this world, sed Pa, but crows feet is crows feet, just as sure as pigs nuckels is pigs nuckels. There is no gitting away from the ravages of old Kid Time, Pa sed. It is as relentless as high proof whisky, Pa sed, it gits us all.

What Pa Wanted

But what I was going to say, sed Pa, is that I was thinking of saving a little munny up for the long winter of our old age. It cairn to me very forcibel in the car, Pa sed, wen I heard a man telling that he had been a honest & faithful bookkeeper for forty (40) yeers with one concern & then, after all his yeers of work, had added up 9 & 14 called it 24, & they told him "23." The poor old boy got fired at the last, Pa sed, jest beekaus that he didn't realize he was gitting cold. Wife, let's start in to save.

Well, sed Ma, I agree with you in that respect, but what do you intend to do in the saving line?

I was thinking for one thing, sed Pa, that I wud cut down my cigars. I have been emoaking twenty or so a day, wich cums out $2.50 a day, about. Now, it seems to me that $2.25 is enuff for any man to spend on cigars. Why go & throw away that extra quarter, & cost in a while, Pa sed, I have gone in with sum of the boys & had a Scotch highball. The brand we have been used to talking, sed Pa, is 20 cents a drink. I think the fifteen-cent brand ought to be jest as good. Why throw away a extra nickel? As a other way I thought I mite cut down a little, sed Pa, was to go & buy $50 suits instead of paying sixty. I am gitting so fat, anyway, sed Pa, that I look as much like a Gibson man fin a $30 suite as I do in a $60 suite. That is about all I can think of at my end of the household. Now, what are YOU going to do to cut down expenses?

Ma's Saving

Well said Ma, I was thinking that I mite buy a few less willow plumes for my hats, & be satisfied with the three sets of furs that I have now, except one swell set of sabel that I saw in the window the other day. I must have those. & I was thinking that I cud ware tailored suites oftener than I do, it saives the price of moar new frocks, & I know ware I can buy two swell tailored suites from a perfeckly stylish tailor for $80 apiece.

Fine, sed Pa. Now, Bobbie, what are you going to do to help us cut down expenses.

I have been listening, I told Pa. I will go without my meels.

Same Thing

Private—Jack, to whom are you writing?

Corporal—To my Lizzie.

Private—Then you might write a letter for me at the same time.

Corporal—Well, and what am I to say to your girl?

Private—Just the same as you've been telling yours.

Do You Know That—

Dipsomaniacs in Sweden when put under restraint are fed almost entirely on bread steeped in wine. In less than a fortnight they lostise the very look and smell of liquor, and when liberated generally become total abstainers. In Russia a similar treatment is followed with good results.

The latest development in wireless telegraphy was shown recently at the Imperial College, South Kensington, by the Marconi Wireless Company. It took the form of a "pocket wireless." In four little knapsacks all necessary apparatus can be stored, and if a party were lost in a wilderness help could be easily summoned. At present the apparatus can only send messages within an area of fifteen miles, but it is expected that in time th's range will be greatly increased.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NO!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am the wife of a gambler who has never given one cent to the support of my three-year-old child or to me. We are separated and have been for some time. I have taken him back several times, but he always went to gambling again.

Do you think it right for me, a young woman of twenty-seven, to sacrifice my life for a man like him?

M.

YOU owe yourself the right of freedom and happiness. No courts would deny you a divorce under such circumstances, and you are entitled to all the happiness such freedom may bring you.

TOO GREAT A HAZARD

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is there any danger in making the acquaintance of a young man through a matrimonial contest? I have received a list of the Correspondence Club consisting of men who wish to marry, but my intentions are only to marry a farmer, as I love farm life.

ETHEL.

DON'T attempt to win a husband that way. The hazard is too great. Have you no friend you can visit in the rural communities? A girl who prefers farm life is on safe ground in that there should be no difficulty in getting a farmer husband.

ASK HER THE REASON

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen and I have been going with a girl for a year, and every time I ask her out she has some other place to go. ALFRED.

THERE is no discouragement for you in her refusal. Perhaps her parents object; perhaps she thinks you are too young to pay a girl serious attentions. Ask her her reasons, and respect them. That will be a good beginning in winning her regard.

FARMER'S WIFE ALMOST A WRECK

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Own Story.

Westwood, Md.—"I am a farmer's wife and do most of my own work when I am able. I had nervous spells, female weakness and terrible bearing down pains every month. I also suffered much with my right side. The pain started in my back and extended around my right side, and the doctor told me it was organic inflammation. I was sick every three weeks and had to stay in bed from two to four days.

"It is with great pleasure I tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I have followed your directions as near as possible, and feel much better than I have felt for years. When I wrote you before I was almost a wreck. You can publish this letter if you like. It may help to strengthen the faith of some poor suffering woman."—Mrs. JOHN F. RICHARDS, Westwood, Maryland.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's So Page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution as it is too expensive. It is free, and only obtainable by mail. Write for it to-day. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Sentiment gave stocks a lift this morning. Fundamentals governing values remain about the same, but belief that peace in the Balkans is nearer and that the monetary strain in Europe will soon be lessened sent prices up abroad and at home. Premier Asquith said that Turkey had agreed to let the Powers mediate, and that the points on which an agreement had to be reached were only minor ones.

American stocks were stronger in London and Canadian Pacific made gains here. Short covering was one of the reasons why securities were quoted higher in New York as soon as the market opened. By 11 o'clock Canadian Pacific was up 2¾, Amalgamated 1⅜, Union Pacific 1⅜, Reading 1½, Steel 1⅛, and Southern Pacific ⅝.

In Boston Granby gained a point and a half during the first hour. Tamarack rose 2 points. A number of other copppers made fractional gains.

Trading in New York during the first hour was active, share transactions totalling nearly 150,000.

Helped by Better Tone Abroad.

The improvement in the New York market at the opening was largely credited to the firmer tone in London, where American stocks made substantial gains prior to business beginning in this country. It is called that it is believed in London that that market has been oversold. The general carryover was small, but contango rates remained stiff. It was said by a Berlin cablegram this morning: "The warlike utterances of the Cologne Gazette, an inspired organ, caused a slump on the Bourse. Consols became firmer, closing at 77 after being 76¾. Great Northern preferred ⅝, Bethlehem Steel ⅝, California Petroleum ⅝, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 1, Chesapeake & Ohio ½ and Chino copper ⅜.

The Curb was strong.

Copper Quotations in London.

At the opening the standard warrants market in London was fairly steady, but spot was quoted 5s. lower and futures were unchanged.

There is plenty of copper, it is stated, to be had at 13 cents a pound, although an advance to 15¾ cents was reported yesterday. Buying of the metal is not quite as brisk, especially for exportation.

Concerning the Copper Producers' latest statement one writer says:

"The chief factor was the increase in production during February over January, which showed a per diem output of 4,870,000 pounds, against January's daily rate of 4,120,000 pounds. The continued heavy production at a time when refiners' stocks are piling up is a bearish feature, which of course will be more unfavorable in the future if it simply added to the scepticism which arose last year at a time when output was steadily increasing, but which failed to show at the spotlight time in refinery reports."

The annual report of the Superior Copper Company shows a net profit for 1912 of $172,873, and a balance of assets on December 31 last of $99,784, compared with a balance of liabilities on December 31, 1911, of $73,089.

The annual report of the La Salle Copper Company showed receipts of $10,244, principally from interest, and expenditures of $31,268, resulting in a decrease in assets in 1912 of $21,124.

Reports submitted at the annual meeting of the Tonlumne Copper Company showed that during the year 1912 the company produced 46,683 tons of ore, carrying 4,716,047 pounds of copper, 131,867 ounces silver and 250 ounces gold. The average copper value was 7.5 per cent. The gross value of the metal was $730,196, netting the company $415,528.55.

Financial News in Brief.

The United States Steel Corporation has enough orders on its books to keep its plants running for six months or more if no new business came in.

There is plenty of business in sight for railroads which handle agricultural products. The government report of grain on the farms as of March 1 reported about 42 per cent. of the last year's crop of corn and oats still in reserve and a total, including wheat and barley, of 2,112 millions of bushels, exceeding the amount at this time a year ago by nearly 8,000,000 bushels of grain.

Gay & Sturgis hear that Indiana is expected to strike the felsite bed at 1,500 feet and enter rich copper ground at 1,400 feet, at the outside, according to No. 9 drill hole, which the shaft parallels all the way down. The shaft is now down 1,355 feet, and sinking 70 feet monthly.

It is reported that as high as 9 per cent. was bid in New York yesterday for money for German use running over the first of April.

In seven months of its fiscal year Norfolk & Western has earned a full year's preferred and common dividend with a balance of $1,475,000 remaining.

Senator Brillwell says that Governor Baker has no power to withdraw the bill to increase the stock transfer tax, and that the Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment still has it under advisement.

The gross of the Wabash road increased $398,691 in January and for seven months $1,996,924. The January gain in net was $2,253. For seven months the gain was $470,537.

The New York sub-treasury gained $1,240,000 from banks yesterday, and has gained $2,871,000 since Friday.

HAS WILL TATTOOED UPON HIS SHOULDER

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—Probably the oddest will ever drawn by man is that of Harry Kohlman, a miner from San Bernardino County, who has had his last testament tattooed in purple ink on his left shoulder blade. Kohlman said he was about to take a trip through the troubled regions in Mexico and he wanted a will that was indestructible and one that would survive robbers or fire. His property is valued at $50,000. There are but fifteen words in the document, but lawyers say it is perfectly legal.

WILSON WILL NOT HAVE STATE YACHT

WASHINGTON, March 11.—More Wilson simplicity—the President pays his way to the theatres, and he will not keep the Mayflower as a yacht for himself and his family. The President and Mrs. Wilson decided that they would like to see "Bunty Pulls the Strings" at the Belasco Theatre. He paid $25 for two boxes.

PURCHASE BONDS NOW ADVICE TO INVESTORS BY EXPERT FORBES

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The question of the moment is: "Should bonds be bought now?"

The investor who buys outright at prevailing quotations can scarcely fail to do well. There may be sharp fluctuations in the stock market, causing temporary depression in certain bonds, but the investor who buys for income and security need not worry about such incidents—if they occur.

Commodore Vanderbilt declared he never waited for the last eighth.

To be quite candid, a few influential institutions and bankers hesitate to recommend the purchase of either stocks or bonds at present. They are downright bears. They can see good in nothing. Everything is going awry.

Well, if things were not rather black investors could not pick up securities at the prices now current. It is solely because there are clouds that quotations are low. The investor who waits until sunshine floods the financial world will have to pay much higher prices and, as a consequence, receive poorer wages on his capital.

Should Seek 5 Per Cent.

The average investor should not be content with much less than 5 per cent income. Bonds yielding 4 to 4½ per cent. are likely to sag. We have been and are passing through a period of readjustment. The gilt-edged bonds, the ones held by savings banks, have suffered severely and probably will sink in price until they show a return not far short of 5 per cent.

The investor, there, is not urged to select issues that afford very low income.

Wall Street is in the dumps. It sees ghosts at Washington. Spooks have also been careering through the Capitol at Albany. In Europe nothing less than that long-dismissed, always-postponed and not imminent "general conflagration" is looked for by the nervous ones in the financial districts. A total collapse in Germany is among the minor events confidently predicted.

Let us, in all soberness, however, examine the facts. They will prove to be not so terribly alarming.

Neither President Wilson nor the much-feared Bryan has done anything to cause convulsions, nor even blinted at a coming onslaught upon business. Legislators appear to be acting quite sanely. They have shown no impatience to throw the country into a state of demoralization.

Assurance of Peace.

Only yesterday Governor Sulzer slew the bloated bill providing a stock transfer tax of $4 per 100 shares. Surely this is encouraging. That the so-called "usury" measure, limiting the call loan rate to 15 per cent. will be dropped once it is fully understood is tolerably certain. Incorporation of the Stock Exchange is also doubtful.

Yesterday also the European cables brought a virtual assurance that peace would be signed by Turkey and the Balkan States. Premier Asquith made an announcement to this effect in the House of Commons—and British statesmen do not usually talk at random.

Does that look like a general conflagration?

Let peace be declared and see how quickly the $500,000,000 of hoarded gold will be released by timid Europeans! And then watch the electric effect of this upon financial centres!

Germany, it is true, is badly in need of assistance to tide her over April 1. But she is getting that assistance. London sent her nearly $2,000,000 gold yesterday. New York added to its consignment, and more will be supplied without demur. The Reichsbank today owns more gold than it carried a year ago. After the bank settlements have been arranged a sharp recovery will be in order.

Speculators may see cause for holding aloof, but the out-and-out investor is safe bonds, yielding 5 per cent. or better, to make purchases with every reasonable expectation that his investment will prove profitable.

TODAY'S LATE CABLE NEWS

Alfonso Faces Fifth Operation.

PARIS—Announcement was made here today that King Alfonso of Spain will shortly visit President Poincare of France. From here the Spanish King may go to London and Berlin. Alfonso's catarrhal trouble has again made its appearance and it is believed that another operation will be performed on his throat during the Spring at Marseilles. Alfonso has already had four operations performed to remove a persistent growth at the back of the nostrils.

"Pretty Tough," Says Bacon.

LONDON—Robert Low Bacon, eldest son of the retiring American Ambassador to France, is counting days until March 22. Then he will sail on the Mauretania to rejoin his fiancee, Miss Virginia Murray of New York. "It is pretty tough for me to be away at such a time," said young Mr. Bacon.

Balaklava Hero Dead.

LONDON—Viscount Tredegar, known as a hero of Balaklava, died today, aged eighty-three. Viscount Tredegar was decorated for gallantry at the battle of Balaklava in the Crimea war. Viscount Tredegar led his regiment in one of the famous charges that day when most of his men were shot to death.

Hammerstein in New Role.

LONDON—Oscar Hammerstein will soon appear in the unusual role for him of plaintiff instead of defendant in connection with litigation over the London Opera House. He is suing the booking agents for several thousand pounds sterling on the sale of tickets.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism and Serious Diseases Follow

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, painful, scalty, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's Disease, Dropsy, or Diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer, and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for the cure of kidney, bladder trouble and rheumatism than this new scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and lining, cleans out the clogged-up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drive it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst case of kidney, bladder trouble or rheumatism.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else like it—it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle at any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

Get an Automobile--If You Can Afford It

Move to the Suburbs if Necessary—You Can Live There with an Automobile as Cheaply and More Comfortably Than in the City WITHOUT One

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

Everybody should go to the automobile show.

This is the time for the man who hasn't yet got an automobile for himself and his family to think hard about getting one.

Here are some facts—actual facts, not imagination—that ought to help thousands of citizens to make up their mind that their automobile hour has come.

You can get a small house in the suburbs, live under your own roof, with your own front yard, plenty of fresh air and sunlight, AND KEEP AN AUTOMOBILE for less than it costs to live in the city without an automobile.

The automobile today is an absolutely different thing from what it was five, ten or even three years ago.

An automobile kept by an intelligent man now is less expensive than a horse and buggy.

The smaller, economical cars, built solidly, substantially, and to last for years, cost so little for upkeep that the man acquainted with the facts can scarcely believe them.

You may go for six months without changing a tire if you care to take the trouble to run your car carefully.

You can fill a small tank with gasoline, with one of the modern, economically constructed cars, and you can run the whole week with that small gasoline supply—if you don't go touring off in the direction of Honolulu.

The cars are so simple that the man who chooses can keep his car without a chauffeur. His wife or his fifteen-year-old boy can meet him at the station, take him to the station, and use the car while he is away.

And at the end of long use, the car can be sent back to the manufacturers, and a new one obtained for half price, or even less.

Remember that automobiling is no longer a luxury of the rich, but it is actually A NECESSITY OF THOSE THAT ARE ONLY FAIRLY WELL TO DO.

The man to whom time is important, who must run around seeing many different people, OWES IT TO HIMSELF TO HAVE AN AUTOMOBILE.

The man who has a wife and children, who realizes that the health built up today is worth more than a few dollars saved for the future, OWES IT TO HIMSELF AND TO HIS FAMILY TO GET AN AUTOMOBILE.

Buy a car WITHIN YOUR MEANS.

Run it carefully, take the advice of the maker as to how you can make your tires and your gasoline last, AND RUN YOUR CAR CHEAPLY.

If you don't want the cost of paying storage in the city, get outside of the city, and remember that the automobile and the country house combined will cost you less than city life without the automobile.

Whatever else you do, go to the big automobile show at Mechanics Building and visit the individual shops where the type of machine that you want can be purchased.

Look over the field, study it, AND GET A MACHINE IF YOU CAN.

Remember that for children growing up, and for you yourself, there is no greater interest than the care of a car, the understanding of machinery.

And, above all, remember what it means to CONQUER SPACE AT WILL, to see all that is beautiful in the country about you, to visit neighboring towns, climb the high hills, run down to the ocean's edge in Summer when you choose.

With an automobile you can, by turning the crank and starting the machine, CHANGE A HOT SUMMER DAY INTO A DAY OF BREEZE AND COMFORT. You can take your children, and your wife, for an entire day's happiness at a very slight cost.

You will find your wife very glad to save on clothes, and your children glad to forego many other things that they have thought necessities, if you will give them NOW the machine that they ought to have.

Get an automobile, if you possibly can.

The Clothes of a Distinguished Gentlewoman

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson chanced to let fall a remark the other day to the effect that she had never been in the habit of spending as much as a thousand dollars a year on her clothes, and that she had no notion of beginning now. Whereupon the newspapers begin to print scarehead articles to show by the testimony of "modistes and society women in Chicago and elsewhere," that a thousand dollars a year is not enough "to provide a suitable wardrobe for the First Lady of the land."

In the same issue of one newspaper that carried this story about the scandalized modistes there happened to appear an interesting article showing how three self-supporting young women of delicate taste and breeding manage to live very becomingly on a weekly expenditure of twelve dollars each.

Now, the "modistes" quoted may perhaps be excused, on commercial grounds, for their refusal to admit that a thousand dollars can possibly buy a year's clothes for a gentlewoman of social distinction. But there must be something wrong with the "society women in Chicago and elsewhere" if they persist in thinking that a great social station necessarily involves a great expense for clothes.

The truth seems to be, on the contrary, that the cost of women's apparel sometimes, and not seldom, increases and goes on increasing without end—in direct ratio with the social uselessness and unimportance of the wearers.

Scarcity of Words in Conversation a Thing to Be Ashamed of—Fault Is in Our Teaching

We Should Learn to Use Orally Every New One We Meet—A Few Hundred Words Are All That the Majority of Persons Called Educated Are Accustomed to Use

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

SOMEBODY has recently counted the number of different words employed by writers of ordinary letters of all kinds, business, social, family, etc., and has announced as a result of the enumeration that the majority of intelligent people, possessing what is called a good education, currently use only a few hundred out of the sixty to eighty thousand words that an ordinary desk dictionary of the English language contains.

It seems that three or four hundred words suffice to express the meanings intended to be conveyed by most of the letters that go through the mails.

If you listen to an ordinary conversation you will quickly be convinced that the same poverty of expression prevails in the oral employment of language. In this case it is not so easy to set the figures as in that of writing, and here the dictagraph might be a great aid to any one who wished to discover the real facts about the non-employment of the English language by the inheritors of its riches.

A few dictagraphs, placed in business offices, clubs, public schools and places of social assemblage, would quickly tell the story, and it is certain that that story would not be a creditable one.

Conversation Often Becomes a Kind of Guessing Match.

Set phrases, including the same words, are used over and over by almost everybody. The thought, such as it is, is merely sketched, in bare outline. The fewest possible strokes are used, with almost no shading. Conversation often becomes a kind of guessing match, and different meanings may be read into a speaker's words by different listeners.

The immense wealth of the language lies fallow as far as the ordinary person is concerned. He knows the meaning of thousands of words when he sees them in print or hears them from some master of speech, but they do not form a part of his own mental equipment, and he does not have them under control, ready to serve him at any moment.

The result is painfully apparent whenever the average man undertakes to present a new thought, or when he wishes to be particularly explicit with regard to some statement. He cannot find the words to say what he wants to say. His tongue is tied, and he presents his thought in so blundering and fragmentary a form that he himself loses his grasp upon it, and his mind goes wandering.

And yet he really knows the words that could express his meaning when he sees or hears them. If some bystander puts a needed word into his mouth he seizes it with eagerness, but the next instant he is as much as sea as ever, because he has no command over the language as a whole. He has only learned a few common words, and fixed expressions, like a parrot. The chances are that never in his life has he meditated upon the meaning of a word, or traced its origin, or learned to distinguish it from others having a similar, but not precisely the same, signification. Language for him is a mere haphazard means of conveying his thoughts, without any fullness or precision.

Language for Many Is a Haphazard Way of Conveying Thought.

The schools are largely to blame for this. In school the child is taught to spell and pronounce a great number of words, which it is never required to use. The consequence is that these words appear to the learner to be a language belonging only to books.

The school child should be drilled in the daily employment of every word that the spelling book contains. It is not enough that he is taught to use the words in written compositions. Such compositions always have an artificial character for him. He feels that there is something stilted and pretentious about them, and they do not take hold of his real mind.

The utilization of the words acquired should be by speaking them, in the most natural way possible. The teacher should make a point of employing, in an off-hand way, in conversation with the class the words which they have been studying. The children should be led, insensibly, to use new words in their play, and during their out-of-school hours. Here, of course, parents can aid immensely. But first they must, themselves, master a wide range of verbal expressions.

Mere reading will not give this ready mastery. A word must be acquired by the organs of speech as well as by the mind. Unless the lips and the tongue are accustomed to pronounce it, it will not come promptly when wanted.

Make Use Orally of Every New Word You May Come Across.

Words are tools, and they cannot be effectively employed unless the bodily organs that have to handle them are trained to their use. One of the best rules that I have ever heard for the acquirement of facility of speech is to make use, by oral expression, of every new word you learn, at the very first opportunity, and to continue to use it until it springs of itself upon your lips when the thought that it expresses comes into your mind.

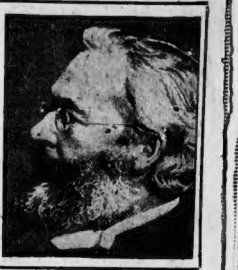
The True Christian Spirit—Striking Labor Errs When It Resorts to Acts of Violence, Because It Forfeits Public Sympathy



Written for the Boston American by

DR. C. H. PARKHURST

THIS world is going to continue to be a rough world to live in, full of friction, till the time comes when men and women shall consider that they are not absolute owners of what they hold in their possession, but merely its trustees to be used in contribution to the public interest.

That is an exacting doctrine, but it is simple Christian truth, and it is a truth that a good many people are living up to; and those are just the people, and the only people, that foster our respect for the human race and our hopes for the social future.

It is not socialism. It does not destroy the idea of property, nor erase the line drawn between what is mine and what is yours.

A gentleman says to me, "I have an automobile which I use only irregularly and I should like sometimes to have you have the benefit of it."

The machine is still distinctly his, but his offer, whether I avail of it or not, is a concession; it is an indication on his part that while by the common law of tenure the machine was indivisibly his own, by the law of comradeship I had a share in it; that there was upon him an obligation—although a pleasant one and one that transcended obligation—to take me into partnership with him in the use of the auto.

Unselfish Sentiment Only True Christian Spirit.

Sentiments of that kind tend to soften the sharp edge of property relation. It is like taking down the fence between two adjoining lots, which does not diminish the proprietorship of either of the two respective owners, but it does to a certain extent and in rather a practical way merge the two lots into one, and disguises the raw edge of proprietary rights.

Whether in regard to material possessions or possessions in the field of intellect or genius or professional or industrial skill of any kind, the only truly social and Christian attitude that can be consistently maintained is one that prompts the possessor to consider himself as being, within certain limits, a piece of common property, a general fountain of supply, to be drawn upon very much, according to the requirements of public need, without any exacting insistence upon reimbursement or remuneration.

THE sympathy of the public is very apt to be with strikers. This is accounted for in part by the evident, painfully evident, difference in condition between wealthy employers and those who are the means of securing to them their wealth, the money-owners and the money-earners.

It is also to be stated in explanation that whereas the general attitude toward the less favored was devil take the hindermost" Christianity has diffused the sentiment, that instead of leaving them to the devil the unfortunate are the very ones upon whom the public should bestow its most thoughtful and affectionate attention.

What needs to be said to unsatisfied working people is that they ought to realize that there is a great deal of this sympathetic sentiment in the community and that it behooves them to adopt no methods of improving their condition that will tend to cost them the support of that sentiment.

Violence on Part of Labor Is Usually Work of Few, but Hurts All.

Violence, when it is committed, is the work of a few, but it damages the entire cause in the estimate of the public.

It is just as it is with the suffragist movement in England, which has had a bad set-back because of the silly, riotous and hysterical performances of Mrs. Pankhurst and a few Amazons of the same complexion.

The strike at Paterson, N. J., was organized as a protest against the introduction of improved machinery, whereby one man can do two men's work, thus throwing 50 per cent. of the weavers out of a job. That has been the history of mechanical improvements ever since such improvements commenced to be made. It has always worked to the disadvantage of manual labor. But when a mechanical improvement is made it will stay made. It marks progress, and progress never can be arrested. People have to adjust themselves to it instead of expecting that it will adjust itself to them.

It may be some time before manual labor will succumb to the new invention. Employers, for the sake of peace, may, after having installed a more economical piece of machinery, continue to pay their help the old rates, that is, pay them twice what they earn.

Progress Will Win Out in the Long Run, History Teaches.

There is an example of that, conducted on a very large scale, in a certain manufactory of which I know. There may be others. But in the long run progress will win out.

When the wind blows we may creep under some form of shelter, but the wind will continue to blow. We can put up our umbrella, but that will not stop the rain. Noah got into an ark, but the deluge kept on.

There is in progress a certain inevitableness that has to be respected. Modernism, whether pertaining to machinery, to science or to religion, has the right of way, and it is better to get off the track than to stay on and be run over.

A Life of Christ in Pictures

HOW would you like to have, in one group, all the notable pictures of Jesus that have come from the inspired imagination of all the great artists who have sought to represent the Savior to the eye? How would you like to have, in one book, all the most remarkable paintings which have depicted the scenes attending His birth, His boyhood, His youth, His manhood, His great work for mankind? Would it not be something to be desired?

In view of the approaching Easter season, the AMERICAN is gratified at being able to offer its readers an opportunity of securing a complete story of the Christ, told in narrative form by means of pictures. It is entitled "From Manger to Throne," and is the most exhaustive collection of illustrations relating to the life of Christ ever brought together in a single publication. It is in the form of a magazine of sixteen pages, eleven by fourteen inches, and contains 350 pictures, while all the illustrations are explained, below each being an explanatory caption taken from the original text.

One entire page is devoted to the conceptions of the Christ by the great masters. The remainder of the book follows the life of the Master from the manger to the Resurrection, with pictures of incidents in His life as conceived by the greatest artists and engravers, and with reproductions of actual photographs of the scenes in the Holy Land made famous by His passing. No such collection has ever been brought together before, and this inspiring collection of pictures, which so vividly portray the birth, the boyhood, the baptism, the public ministry, the miracles, the parables and examples of the Savior, should be in every home where children are taught to honor His name.

Readers of the AMERICAN can obtain this publication for only five cents and one coupon clipped from next Sunday's AMERICAN. It will be sent by mail for five cents extra.

There is no other way to get this remarkable volume.

Sunday schools, religious schools, church societies, Bible societies, ladies' auxiliary societies, young people's societies and all other religious organizations should take advantage of this opportunity to distribute this memorial of Christ among those who will welcome and appreciate it.
